Kursk Fall Imperils Whole Nazi Line

SOVIET FLAG FLIES ABOVE KEY BASTION

Red Siege Guns Thundering Destruction Into Second Axis Citadel at Rostov.

Vichy Predicts Major Battle as Allied Bombers Range From Sicily to Denmark.

(By Associated Press)

A sudden and spectacular Russian coup which netted the capture of Kursk, one of the "big six" bastions of the German defense system, imperilled the whole Nazi line below Moscow today even as Red army siege guns thundered destruction upon the Axis citadel at Rostov-on-Don.

Kursk, which lies about midway between Moscow and Rostov, formed a major link in the German defense wall along with Smolensk, Bryansk, Orel, Kharkov and Rostov.

The city, in the Black Earth region on the southern slope of the central Russian plateau, had been in Nazi hands since Nov. 11, 1941, four and a half months after the German invasion armies stormed into Russia.

Battle dispatches said the Red flag was raised over Kursk at 3 p. m. yesterday and described the city as "an enormous cemetery." "The (German) Kursk army, as it called itself, does not exist any more," Soviet war correspondents said.

The city itself was reported destroyed by shelling and fires.

On the Rostov front, German troops were stubbornly counter-attacking in an attempt to stave off disaster, but the Russians declared they had captured at least a dozen more towns and railway stations below the city.

Latest Soviet dispatches said

Stalingrad Ruins Tell Story Of Siege's Horror

By GODFREY BLUNDEN

STALINGRAD—(AP)—The sign on the broken wall in this tortured city said: "Expose panic mongers and cowards."

All around this silent appeal to the Russian people to remain steadfast and report the faint of heart lay the ruins and the dead, the smashed tanks and the broken cannon which tell the story of Stalingrad's heroism.

There isn't a house in the city with a roof and there are very few houses left. Acres and acres of blackened walls, street after street filled with rubble and splintered trees and telephone poles show the agonies of the siege.

Piles of stiff German bodies in their ragged and battle-worn uniform are stacked in the open. Many more Germans lie inside the crushed buildings where they died.

There are not many civilians about the lifeless city, but there are many Red army men. A few of the old residents are moving about, hopeful of taking up the old way of living, but it will be a

ON MISSING LIST

Ashland Lieutenant Missing In Action, Wife Informed.

ASHLAND—Mrs. William G. Norton of Ashland has received a message from the war department informing her that her husband, Lieut. Norton, of the army air corps, stationed somewhere in the southwest Pacific, is missing in action.

Lieut. Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Norton of New Pittsburg, was employed as a salesman for the F. E. Myers and Brothers company before enlisting in the air corps.

Trying To Beat The Deadline

Trying to beat the Sunday deadline set by the government before rationing of shoes began, women crowded many New York shoe stores, which were open or opened for business quickly. Rationing of shoes began on Tuesday, Feb. 9, with every man, woman and child allotted three pairs of shoes a year. No. 17 stamp of sugar ration book is used to get shoes.

Shoe Stores Running Again As Rationing 'Freeze' Ends

Mansfield shoe dealers, along with some 200,000 retailers in the nation, resumed sale of shoes today but customers have to present ration coupon 17, from their sugar-coffee book, as well as money to buy them.

The 33-hour freeze, which was clamped on without warning at 3 p. m. Sunday ended at 12:01 a. m. today. The ration will be three pairs of shoes per person per year, one pair being purchasable between now and June 15. Only exception at the present are those persons who made lay-aways, mail orders or "will-call" purchases before Sunday.

Clarification of the lay-away situation was made by the OPA last night with delivery on such purchases ordered made before Friday. Shoes ordered by mail before Sunday may also be delivered, the OPA ruled. Shoes delivered without ration stamps must have been ordered before announcement of the rationing and must have been wrapped, marked or held for delivery to a customer.

FACE REPRISALS

Dutch to Get Sharper Curfew For Seyffardt Slaying.

LONDON—(U.P.)—Dutch citizens faced an intensified German curfew in north and south Holland today as the Nazis planned drastic reprisals against the population for the fatal shooting of Dutch Lieut.-Gen. Hendrik Alexander Seyffardt, 70, commander-in-chief of the Dutch Nazi legion and a key figure in Nazi efforts to raise Dutch troops for service on the Russian front.

The German radio last night said the curfew had been moved forward two hours in the two provinces. It was believed the measure was aimed at facilitating a search for the assassin and a round-up of suspects.

German authorities did not immediately announce what reprisals are planned, but Dutch officials in London feared mass executions.

60,000 TO BE ENROLLED FOR POINT RATIONS

City and Rural Schools Again Will Handle Registration In Period Feb. 23-26.

INSTRUCTOR DUE HERE

Mansfield Registrations To Take Place on Four Days, County Two Days.

School teachers and volunteer workers will register about 60,000 residents of Mansfield and Richland county for war ration book two in the week beginning Feb. 22, according to an announcement today by Ration Board Chairman C. C. Beelman.

The new point system will go into effect March 1, after a freezing period of canned and frozen fruits and vegetables and dried food, Feb. 20 to March 1.

Mansfield consumers will be registered afternoons of Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 23-26 inclusive, according to tentative plans being worked out by W. L. Miller, superintendent of the city schools.

Rural residents will be registered during school hours on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 25 and 26, according to Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, who announced today that schools in this district will be closed on these dates.

Few plans, other than dates of the registration for the new point rationing set-up, have been worked out as yet, Beelman said, since full details have not yet been received by the ration board.

An official from the office of price administration will be in the county soon to instruct the school personnel concerning the gigantic

TAKES OFFICE

Kalbfleisch Assumes Duties as Common Pleas Judge.

G. E. Kalbfleisch assumed the office of Richland county common pleas judge today with exchange of greetings, among fellow associates and well wishers, and the business of becoming established in the new headquarters foremost on the day's calendar.

Flowers on his desk, as well as candy and cigars, almost made the occasion a festive one preliminary to the serious business that usually belongs to a court. No cases were docketed for hearing today.

Ralph H. Hughes, new probation officer and common pleas bailiff, was on deck today for the first time after being instructed Saturday in the ways of his work by the retiring officer, David Lantz. Hughes was preparing to move his office from the jury room to the records room formerly used by the assignment clerk.

WILL KEEP WAR TIME

AKRON—(AP)—Neighboring Barberton and Cuyahoga Falls will follow Akron's lead in refusing to change to Eastern Standard Time if the state legislature enacts a measure to set clocks back an hour, mayors of the two Summit county cities agreed.

Sponsor New Manpower Bill

With the support of nation-wide civic and military organizations, a selective service bill to draft any adult citizen into war work has been introduced in the senate and house by Senator Warren A. Austin, (R., Vt.) seated, and Rep. James W. Wadsworth, (R., N.Y.) The proposed legislation would require men between the ages of 18 and 65 and women from 18 to 50 to take any job assigned them by the government.

CLOCK CHANGE PUZZLES SENATE

'Pros' and 'Antis' Both See More Votes; New Tobacco, Liquor Tax Proposed.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The question of whether Ohio's time should be changed immediately or 90 days hence still perplexed the senate today as it came to a vote on the issue.

Friends of the bill to turn back the clocks an hour said they had mustered sufficient senate votes to approve an emergency clause, needed to effect the change immediately.

Opponents said public sentiment against a time change was increasing and that some senators who voted originally for the bill might reverse their stand.

Meanwhile the legislature went by the deadline on free introduction of bills with 614 measures in the hopper, 310 less than the total on the deadline in the last session. New bills introduced yesterday totaled 208.

They included measures to increase the cigaret tax from 2 cents per package of 20 to 3 cents and levy an additional tax of 10 cents a quart on bottled liquor. The revenue would be used to help finance payment of $50,000,000 in bonuses to Ohioans serving in the armed forces.

The senate approved and sent

CEILING DUE

U. S. to Set Top Price For Fluid Milk Soon.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The government soon will place a nation-wide emergency ceiling on the prices paid to farmers for fluid milk in an effort to prevent further increases in the cost of milk to the public.

The office of price administration announced last night that its forthcoming regulation will stipulate that no distributor of fluid milk may pay more to producers for supplies than the highest prices he paid for milk delivered in January, 1943.

The order will be temporary and will remain in effect from date of issuance—soon until April 9. It will be replaced by a permanent order within 60 days. It will not apply to producer prices for milk of four per cent butter fat content for fluid use which are below $2.75 per hundredweight.

FLIERS KILLED

Seven Perish, Two Hurt in Army Bomber Crash.

SIOUX CITY, Ia.—(INS)—Seven army fliers were killed and three injured, officials of the Sioux City Air base disclosed today in the crash of a large bomber three miles southeast of the base last night. Two of the survivors are in serious condition.

Names of the fliers killed and injured were not available pending notification of next of kin.

Evacuation of Solomons Isle, Buna Admitted

Tokyo Says 16,700 Nipponese Troops Slain In First Admission Of War That Important Territory Has Been Abandoned.

(By Associated Press)

Japan's imperial headquarters was quoted by Axis broadcasts today as announcing that Japanese forces have evacuated Guadalcanal island in the Solomons, ending a six-months' campaign, and in Washington Secretary Knox said all enemy resistance on the key island "has apparently ceased."

Thus Tokyo admitted defeat of its half-year effort to prevent complete occupation of Guadalcanal. It was Japan's first admission in this war of abandonment of vital territory.

Knox said that at best only a few Japanese survivors remained out of a Japanese army originally estimated at 15,000 troops.

The navy secretary declared that with the evident collapse of the enemy attempt to maintain their foothold on the island, American forces were now "within striking distance of some of the most important bases of the Japanese."

Berlin said an official Tokyo announcement admitted that Japanese troops had withdrawn "after their missions had been fulfilled."

The broadcast said the Japanese also announced the evacuation of the Buna area in New Guinea, apparently an admission, nearly three weeks delayed, of the destruction of the Jap army in Papua by General MacArthur's American and Australian forces.

The announcement put Japanese losses in the two theaters at 16,734. The Associated Press recorded the Berlin broadcast. Reuters, in London, heard the same announcement on the Tokyo radio, while the OWI reported it also was broadcast from Tokyo on a beam for Latin America.

"Withdrawal of Japanes troops from Buna on the northeast coast of New Guinea and from the Solomon island of Guadalcanal after their missions had been fulfilled was announced Tuesday night by the imperial Japanese headquarters," the Berlin broadcast said.

"The announcement declares that thanks to a strong vanguard situated at Buna, which repulsed repeated enemy attacks, strong bases were able to be established on New Guinea and in the Solomons islands which now permit new strategy.

"After this objective was reached, Buna was evacuated by the end of January.

"For the same reason troops stationed on Guadalcanal, who since last August had repelled strong attacks of forces the enemy landed there, were moved to other places at the beginning of February, having likewise fulfilled their task.

"As far as is known, in these occupations since August of last year 25,000 enemy troops were wiped out, more than 240 enemy airplanes were shot down or destroyed, and more than 30 guns and 25 tanks were put out of commission.

"Japanese losses in dead amounted to 16,734 either killed in action or died of wounds and illness. In addition, 130 Japanese airplanes were lost."

The Japanese announcement constitutes the first admission from Tokyo in this war of the abandonment of important territory.

It indicates the recent movements of Japanese task forces toward Guadalcanal may have been for the purpose of withdrawing the badly beaten remnants of the once formidable force which, for six months, has slugged it out with U. S. forces for possession of the island and its strategic air field.

Guadalcanal would become the first major island to be wholly retaken by the Allies from the Japanese.

The effects of the Tokyo announcement on the Japanese people is likely to be profound. Even the docile Japanese should be able to recognize that the long, uninterrupted chain of victory announcements has been broken.

A federal communications commission translation of a broadcast in Japanese to Japan and the empire indicated that the Japanese militarists were hesitating to tell the whole story to their people. It said one sec-

'No Doubt About It', Says Knox On Guadalcanal Victory

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today all enemy resistance on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons "has apparently ceased."

He qualified the statement by saying there may be a few Japanese groups left and added the apparent end to the six months' campaign on Guadalcanal has placed American forces "within striking distance of some of the most important bases of the Japanese."

The secretary talked to a press conference shortly after the Berlin radio announced that Japanese imperial headquarters had reported the withdrawal of Japanese forces from Guadalcanal. The Berlin reports also told of the evacuation by the Japanese of the Buna area, where the United States reported final annihilation of a 15,000-man Japanese force had been accomplished some three weeks ago.

Knox noted that no such broadcast, as the story stated, had been received directly from Tokyo, but said:

"I don't think there's any doubt about the truth of that report."

He expressed the opinion that it was possible that widespread recent sea and air activity in the Solomons might have been "a demonstration to cover their withdrawal" in discussing the reported retreat of the Japanese from the highly strategic Solomons island, on which is located Henderson airfield.

This apparent end of a six months' campaign to gain control of the strategic island with its vastly important airfield, Knox said, has denied to the enemy a base from which to raid American lines of communication to Australia and has placed American forces "within striking distance of some of the most important bases of the Japanese."

"The story of the Southwest Pacific would have been a vastly different story for the last three or four months had we not established our position in the Solomons," Knox said.

He reported that he was with-

Record Budget Request, Giant Surplus Place Bricker Administration In Embarrassing Spot

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Introduction into the Ohio legislature of the largest budget request in Ohio's history has evoked wide interest in Ohio's financial operations. This is the first of a series of articles.)

The Ohio general assembly is in session, and soon will have before it for consideration and passage the 1943-44 biennial appropriation measure.

Predominantly Republican—like the administration under Gov. John W. Bricker—the assembly has been asked to pass the largest appropriation measure in the history of Ohio.

So it may well be that Ohio's legislators will have to do quite a bit of explaining to the folks back home—the folks who elected Bricker to three terms as governor and who threw out Martin L. Davey four years ago because Davey had been accused of extravagance.

The legislators will not only have to explain the difference between the oft-vaunted Bricker economy and Davey extravagance but they will also face some questioning on this business of a state surplus.

Presentation of the biennial budget request to the assembly by the Bricker administration last week was notable for another thing—besides calling for the largest biennial expenditure in the history of the state, it revealed the existence of a surplus of $45,000,000.

It also revealed that the Bricker administration, in order to spend what is estimated would be necessary in the coming two-year period, would have to dip into this surplus, due to anticipated drops in tax income.

Strangely, little was said of state economy or reductions in expenses in the appropriations request, although economy had been a frequently used word during the previous Bricker administrations.

One of the most-argued political topics in Ohio has been the state surplus. Bricker administration officials scoffed a couple of years ago when a metropolitan paper claimed that the state had $10,000,000 salted away. Later other claims were made that the surplus might even be $20,000,000.

There followed a series of demands that the state split up that surplus among the state's smaller and relief-burdened tax sub-

It Takes 8 Freight Cars to Bring You Your Breakfast

—and we're hauling more breakfasts than ever before

It's morning in America.

The faint lights of war dimmed towns blink out, while here and there along the streets hurrying footsteps begin to beat a sharp staccato to the overtone of traffic's waking rumble

And a hundred million people sit down to breakfast

Bacon and eggs . . . fruit . . . cereal . . . buttered toast . . . and coffee. Not all of these in all homes and not all homes with the same quantities. But breakfast for everybody—a good breakfast and a wholesome one.

And it sure makes a person feel swell to know that in times like these when we're sending our best to our boys at the front we're still able to provide for those they left behind.

The opposite might be true, though, if it were not for America's gigantic railway system. For it is only because of the railroads that fruits and vegetables raised in California can be used to nourish New York's millions; that there are no severe shortages in one place and wasteful surpluses in another; and that any farmer, anywhere, can market his produce throughout the country.

Just as an indication of the tremendous size of this transportation job—it takes at least 8 different freight cars to bring to your city the breakfast we've described. One car for fruit, another for eggs, another for bacon—a separate car for each commodity.

Despite the tremendous load of war materials now moving by rail, there is also more food moving than ever before. Production goals for 1943 call for 37% more pork than in 1941, 12% more beef—just to mention two items. Nearly one third of this meat—in fact nearly one third of all food—will go for military and lend lease requirements But regardless of where it goes, it must be transported. And we're going to see to it that our people, wherever they may be, will always eat enough.

It's morning in America—good morning!

THE BOY FROM MAINE

CHAPTER XXIV

He saw her again that afternoon. You couldn't escape her, if you emerged at all—he was to find that out in the ensuing days. Now he was taking a sun bath on a rock at the point near the fish-house, and she joined him matter-of-factly, and sat down without being asked. "I didn't know where you went," she remarked, as though in apology for her tardy appearance. He must have been there all of fifteen minutes.

He noted that she had changed her dress for this afternoon rendezvous. It was still a tight dress, made of cotton, but this time it was brown instead of blue. She still wore the red shoes, and now the narrow hair ribbon was red, to match. There were little scarlet berries that grew on the island — bunchberries, they were called—and she had plucked a sprig of those and thrust it through the bow of the ribbon. It made her golden head look gaily garish, like a Christmas package.

The whole effort deserved a compliment, and Hobey said, "I like what you've got on. The little trimmings, too. And your hair's gorgeous, do you know it? I never saw such hair."

"It's thick," said Bonnie, fingering it. She lifted a gilt strand and let it spin down in the sunlight.

"Nice," said Hobey. "In fact you're really a nice job, from top to toe."

"Am I?"

"As you know very well."

He had been careful to make it sound fraternal rather than flirtatious; and he continued now in the same tone, "I wish you'd tell me all about yourself. Let's get acquainted, here."

She looked immediately wary and suspicious. "Nothin' to tell."

"Now, now. Don't be like that. Of course there is."

"What do you want to know about me for?"

"Well, because I'm interested."

She thought that over, and discarded it. "Mary's been tellin' you enough, I guess," she remarked shortly. "You likely caught hell from Mary even for walkin' with me. She don't like me much — Mary don't. She's jealous," Bonnie added, with complacence. "Like they all are."

She told him nothing, in the end. At least, not that time. They talked about New York instead—how big it was, how far it was from here, and what it looked like. Bonnie asked many fascinated questions and he tried to answer. It was strange how difficult it was when there were no comparisons that you could call upon to aid description.

"Some day," she said presently, "I'm going to take a trip all the way to New York City - and see you."

"That'll be fine."

"Would you be glad to see me, if I did?"

"Of course. Why not?" he said, feeling faintly alarmed. She just might do it.

"Rosalie Hastings lives in New York City," Bonnie said pensively. "Remember Rosalie Hastings used to come here summers? Still goes, once in a while."

"Yes, I remember her," Hobey said.

"Only her names Barker now. She's had two husbands, since I know."

He was going to let it go at that, but there was the temptation to talk about her, so he added, "As a matter of fact I see her around New York every now and then."

"To speak to?" Bonnie said in an awed voice.

"To speak to, yes. I've even been to her apartment," Hobey said, "I'm quite a guy."

He smiled inwardly, because the truth was that he thought so just as Bonnie did. She now stared at him with a new respect. She said, "You mean she asked you up to see her?"

Um-hmmm. She really did."

Bonnie's long, blue eyes grew suddenly shy and worldly-wise. "Where was her husband?"

"Well sometimes he was there," Hobey said. "And the other times he wasn't."

Mm," Bonnie said significantly.

He couldn't quite let that stand so he said, "No, you're wrong, whatever you think. You see, it isn't the way it is around here—in cities it's a little different. You can go calling on somebody else's wife, and it doesn't mean anything at all."

"It don't, eh?" Bonnie said.

He could see that she didn't believe him, and her eyes still had that knowing glint in them, and he laughed outright and said, "What an evil-minded child it is, to be sure!"

"I don't care," said Bonnie, "I bet it don't look right there, any more'n here. I bet you're crazy about her and that's why you went to see her."

"That could be it," Hobey said. "But that wouldn't have to be it. We're old friends, remember. I used to find shells for her, and take her fishing, and row her around in the cove, and all. You're probably too young to remember back that far, but that was the way it was."

"I remember it," Bonnie said—grimly, for some reason.

She had a handful of pebbles, and now she flung them at the water, and dusted her hand off with the other hand. "She don't come here much any more," she said. "Her husband's awful good-lookin' ain't he," Bonnie added abruptly; and again she grew up, and was wise in her eyes, and greedy in her eyes.

"Some day I'm going to get me a man like that," she said. "As handsome as that. And as big."

"I'm betting on you," Hobey said, as gravely as he could. Then he made one amendment. "But richer, don't you think?"

"You mean he ain't rich?"

"I believe not very. But then — you can't have everything."

"She's rich enough, herself," Bonnie said. "She's got everything anybody could want. I wish I was her. Ever since I been a little girl, I've wished I could be just like her and have everything she's got. I even used to try to walk like her, and talk like she does . . . I can do it, too," said Bonnie unexpectedly; and she stood up. "Want to see me do it? All right, watch. I'm Rosalie."

She retreated down the beach a little way, and she came walking back. "This is from last summer, how she was," she said as an aside. It was exactly Rosalie's sauntering, graceful walk; and when Bonnie spoke again it was exactly Rosalie's voice, and accent, and whole manner. "Oh, now, Bailey!" she said. "But darling—you're not really going fishing all day—not again! My sweet, there won't be anything left in the sea at all, if this doesn't stop."

She sank down on the rock, and was Bonnie again. "That's how she does," she said.

Hobey was sitting bolt upright now. He had been lolling at ease when this performance started. "But that's good!" he said incredulously. "Why, that's . . . Well, I'll be damned! You've got her absolutely perfect!"

"I told you," Bonnie said.

"But that's quite a trick - to be able to take people off like that. Can you do anybody else? Let's see you do somebody else."

"Sure I can," said Bonnie calmly. "I can do anybody I ever seen—I mean saw."

She could, too. She gave him several demonstrations. His sister Mary, the idiot Joe, and Bonnie's own father, Owen Roberts, whom Hobey remembered as the island drunk and who apparently still was.

"And now I'll do you," Bonnie said, and she did him, walking up from the fishhouse with an invisible suitcase.

"That tops it," Hobey said. "Kid, you're terrific! Why you ought—" He checked himself, and just in time. "You ought to be very proud," he continued lamely, ad libbing. Because it would have been the wildest folly to have told her that she ought to do something with a talent like that—that she could make a living at it. This had been his impulse, and this was still his hunch, but maybe he was wrong about it—very likely he was crazy—and in any case he knew that the minute he said any such encouraging thing, it would be up to him. He would be stuck with it. "So keep your trap shut, will you?" he said to himself sternly. "Do you want to have this baby on your hands? Don't be a fool."

"Which one did you like best?" Bonnie was asking him.

"Which imitation? The one of Rosalie I think."

"You ought to see me do it in her clothes," Bonnie said matter-of-factly.

"In her clothes? Oh, you mean she gives you things . . ."

"I don't mean that," said Bonnie. She looked sly again. "I'll tell you something," she said, "if you won't tell on me. I know a way to get in her house, and I go there sometimes, by myself, and dress up in her clothes, and pretend I live there and I'm her. But don't tell anybody."

Hobey thought of the house as it must be—shuttered and dim and ghostly—and Bonnie in it all alone, playing Rosalie for the dusty mirrors. It was an eerie vision, curiously interesting. He said, "You do?"

"She's got a lot of clothes she leaves there," Bonnie said. "Summer clothes. I suppose she thinks they ain't good enough to wear any place else but here—anyway, there they are. There's a whole closet full of 'em, hanging and then there's a lot of stuff in the bureau drawers in her room—silk underclothes, and all like that. I wear them, too, when I dress up. They feel lovely on—silk underclothes do. And there's an evening dress, with a low neck to it and no sleeves. You ought to see me in that," Bonnie said, a little breathless with the memory.

"You'd look wonderful. I can imagine."

Bonnie went back to the starting point. "But don't tell on me, will you?"

"Of course I won't."

"I don't take nothin' away," Bonnie assured him quickly, as though he had accused her. She grew truculent. "So what's the harm if I go there sometimes?"

"No harm at all. Who said there was? Don't be such a little spitfire."

"I don't ever take nothin' that don't belong to me," Bonnie insisted stolidly.

"Naturally not," said Hobey, wondering just what it was she had taken. It was certainly something, from her manner. He looked deliberately at the sea, and not at her, and in a minute he saw her draw her skirt over her knees a little lower—as well she might. A petal of pink satin edged with real lace had been showing.

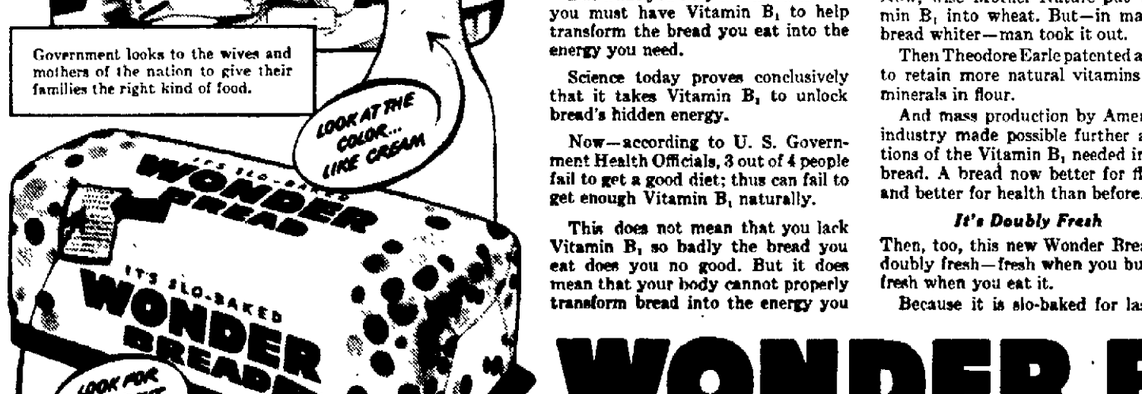
SCIENCE DISCOVERS VITAMIN B_1 NECESSARY TO HELP TRANSFORM BREAD INTO ENERGY

The Hidden Energy In Bread Is Unlocked By Vitamin B_1 To Give You The Energy You Need



Photomicrograph of Vitamin B_1 Magnified 1000 Times. In One Year An Adult Needs 145,850 to 522,640 Units Of Vitamin B_1

Government looks to the wives and mothers of the nation to give their families the right kind of food.

Yet Of The Millions Who Rely Upon Bread For Up To 35% Of Their Daily Energy—3 Out Of 4 Fail To Get A Good Diet, U. S. Officials Say. Thus, Can Fail To Get Enough Vitamin B_1

New Wonder Bread Thrills Thousands Everywhere Because: (1) Contains Vitamin B_1 (2) Slo-Baked For Lasting Freshness (3) Tastes Better (4) Proves Easier-To-Slice

WHAT everybody knows is that millions of people rely upon bread for up to 35% of their daily energy.

But what you may not know is that you must have Vitamin B_1 to help transform the bread you eat into the energy you need.

Science today proves conclusively that it takes Vitamin B_1 to unlock bread's hidden energy.

Now—according to U. S. Government Health Officials, 3 out of 4 people fail to get a good diet; thus can fail to get enough Vitamin B_1 naturally.

This does not mean that you lack Vitamin B_1 so badly the bread you eat does you no good. But it does mean that your body cannot properly transform bread into the energy you must have these days unless you get sufficient Vitamin B_1.

A New Kind Of Bread

Now, wise Mother Nature put Vitamin B_1 into wheat. But—in making bread whiter—man took it out.

Then Theodore Earle patented a way to retain more natural vitamins and minerals in flour.

And mass production by American industry made possible further additions of the Vitamin B_1 needed in the bread. A bread now better for flavor and better for health than before.

It's Doubly Fresh

Then, too, this new Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it; fresh when you eat it.

Because it is slo-baked for lasting freshness—baked 13% longer than many ordinary kinds.

See how much longer it stays fresh on the table and in the lunch box.

In addition, Wonder's slo-baking method gives you bread with a richer flavor now.

And—a firmer, tenderer texture. You'll find it easy to slice—and it leaves no crumbs.

Get new Wonder Bread at your grocer's today. You'll be glad you did!

Only Wonder Bread is made this way from Earle Patented Process Flour—U. S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2252696.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

One way in which the record companies are coping with the Petrillo ban on instrumental music is to put out discs featuring a cappella musical combinations, with the choral groups going "zum zum zum" or "da da dadee da da dadee" as fill-in. I shouldn't be surprised if this opens a complete (if non-essential) new branch of show business, with hummers, grunters, scat shouters and riff singers hiring themselves not to replace the now hushed lyre.

Kilgallen

I mean, should Bing Crosby want to wax a new Gershwin album, he might do it to the accompaniment of a mixed choir crying "chuffa!" at proper intervals. Or Jane Froman might share billing with a crew humming "Hmm, da-de-ah-da" on the offbeat.

Personally, I think the system has fascinating possibilities.

Mitzi, the powder room concierge at the Coq Rouge, was telling me the other night that at least one beautiful blond has refused to let the taxicab and automobile situation interfere with her elegance on a big date. This chic chick, Mitzi reports, first swept into view wearing a slinky black dinner dress with a skirt that touched the floor. But when it came time to leave, the lass disappeared into the powder room and before Mitzi's startled eyes took off her long skirt, revealing a short street-length skirt underneath. Then she put the floor-length skirt, neatly folded, into her large black satin envelope bag and sauntered out to meet her escort and make for the nearest subway station.

It seems it is very difficult for the OPA or the WPB or anyone else to ration feminine ingenuity.

Along with many New Yorkers, I was a little disturbed when I saw the plans for the new modernistic-looking building which will be the Museum of Natural History after the war. I suppose that from any 1943 architectural point of view the present structure is an eyesore, but Gothamites have a tendency to become fond of the few old-fashioned buildings around town which have hung on.

We felt that way when Commissioner Moses doomed the old Aquarium; we mourn the passing of any of the ancient Fifth avenue town houses. I imagine most native New Yorkers associate the Natural History building with high school conducted tours of the vast halls, brisk Autumn afternoons spent in its pleasantly warm halls gazing at stuffed apes in glass cases and marveling at the giant whale suspended from the ceiling.

Along with most Gothamites, I find I get quite a shock when the newsreels show a clip taken on some inland city where the streets are still crowded with passenger cars. The sight makes some audiences feel deliciously wicked, in a vicarious way—others more frustrated I suppose, react with jealous hisses . . . Half of the unofficial explorers who trek to Boston to see the "Ziegfeld Follies" in its tryout state, return to report that the stars and featured attractions are so envious of one another that mayhem is liable to break out at any point at any time.

The other half solemnly take oaths on their ration cards that no slightest ripple of malice clouds the backstage picture; that Milton Berle loves Arthur Treacher who loves Jack Cole who loves Ilona Massey who loves Sue Ryan, ad infinitum. Well, that's a sure sign of a hit.

Coons

Scene by scene, Charlotte Bronte's novel about the love-lorn governess and the forbidding, morose Rochester with the secret in the attic was finished before a camera was turned, even before the players were cast.

"Jane Eyre" has been produced, with all details of lighting, close and long shots and camera angles, on drawing paper. All the preview lacks is dialogue and motion—and Joan Fontaine and Orson Welles in the leading roles. The whole story has been told in a series of 485 drawings, in sequence.

William Pereira, the architect, did them. And he and "Jane Eyre" have brought Art to the 20th Century-Fox studios, home of the boy-meets-girl musicals, the epic westerns, and—with some exceptions like "Grapes of Wrath" and "The Pied Piper,"—the moom-pitcher as opposed to the cinema.

"Jane" is really an adopted child at 20th. She was sold down the river by David O. Selznick in that big deal transferring all his story properties and services of his contract players to the Zanuck lot. "Jane" settled down in her new quarters to the silent amazement of the old inhabitants. Robert Stevenson, who is directing, John Houseman and Aldous Huxley have been working on the script for two years, whittling here and polishing there. The polished script came over intact, after which Huxley returned to shine it up some more.

There's Class all over the joint. Orson Welles has outdone himself in taking up space. He is spread out between Shirley Temple's old bungalow, a suite of offices in the administration building, a second bungalow for his radio writers, and more offices for his press agent. He is simultaneously espousing the simple life by using a horse-and-buggy for getting around, and keeping white rats for pets.

Oscar-winning Miss Fontaine is Class, too—especially since winning the Oscar. It's nothing but the best for Joan now. But those 485 pre-production sketches, in sequence, really set the standard.

SEEK ATTITUDE OF LEADERS ON SERVICE BILL

Senators, Cool to Draft-Labor Measure, Want to Know FDR Opinion.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The attitude of President Roosevelt and key war executives on the Austin-Wadsworth national service bill, under which labor would be drafted if needed, was sought today by the senate military affairs committee.

Action on the measure will be delayed pending official administration reports. A canvass of the senate, however, indicated that the measure was cooly received and faces strong opposition.

The military affairs committee sent the bill to the war and navy departments, to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt and War Production Chairman Donald M. Nelson for reports.

All reports are expected to be cleared through the budget bureau to determine whether they are in accord with White House policy. Thus, the attitude of the president would be disclosed.

McNutt, questioned after introduction of the bill, refused to comment directly on the measure but indicated that national service legislation is not yet necessary to solve the nation's manpower problems.

The WMC chief told reporters that voluntary labor stabilization agreements are "very promising."

Members of McNutt's labor's management policy committee took a definite stand on the measure, declaring that "nothing so far has developed to require compulsion."

Both Sens. Austin (R.), Vt., and Rep. Wadsworth (R), N. Y., discounted opposition which immediately appeared to the labor draft bill. Wadsworth pointed out that it took seven weeks to even get a hearing on the selective service act, but it finally became the law.

Many members of both senate and house, however, declared that there is no chance for enactment of compulsory labor legislation at any time in the near future.

Both President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations have voiced opposition to labor draft legislation in the past, and were expected to renew it.

URGES FARM LABOR BONUS

Ohio Legislator Offers Plan To Establish Land Army To Aid Agriculture.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Plans for a "land army" to move onto the agricultural front and relieve Ohio farmers struggling with labor shortages due to the war were before the Ohio legislature today.

A bonus of one dollar a day above prevailing wage scales was proposed to attract recruits to the farm hand ranks. The state would foot the bonus bill to the tune of $100,000.

Designed "to stimulate the farm labor supply and to aid in the increased production of agricultural products," a measure introduced last night by Rep. A. Lee Fair (D., Holmes) would set up an "Ohio Agriculture Land Army," to function until six months after the end of the war.

The bill would provide for the establishment of a land army board to supervise the project in close co-operation with county agricultural agents.

The board would be composed of the director of agriculture, who would serve as chairman, the dean of the College of Agriculture of Ohio State university, the state highway director, the state education director and three members "who have had actual farm experience," to be appointed by the governor.

Recruits for the pitchfork and plow brigade would be obtained through voluntary registration with the United States employment service, which would certify names to the county agents. Honorary titles could be conferred by the board upon those taking active part in organization of the army, and workers would be entitled to wear buttons signifying membership.

LAST OF FAMILY OF SEVEN DIES

William J. Miller, 89, Sucumbs at Home of Granddaughter.

GREENWICH—William J. Miller, 89, a retired farmer, died Monday at the home of a granddaughter, Mrs. Lincoln Washburn, two miles northwest of Greenwich. He was born in Bloomingrove township and had spent most of his life in this vicinity.

He was the last of a family of seven children and was preceded in death, 41 years ago, by his wife, Clara Ellen, and later by two sons.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Frances Seaman, Shiloh; 12 grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m., Wednesday at the Hines-Bender funeral home here by Rev. Johnson, pastor of the Church of Christ. Burial will be in Edwards Grove cemetery.

SEEK SEWER

Bartley Avenue Residents Want Storm Water Line.

Eleven Bartley avenue property owners today filed a petition with Robert Black, city clerk, asking that council adopt legislation providing construction of a storm sewer in an alley extending from Forest to Sloan avenues.

Length of the proposed drain will be approximately 350 feet, according to the petition, which is the first improvement request filed with council in 1943. The issue likely will be before council at the March 2 meeting.

INTERNATIONAL TASKS FACING U. S. AFTER WAR, SPEAKER SAYS

The United States is fighting this war for new responsibilities, for when the war is over, we are going to move from a national world into an international world, Faye Le Meadows, Dayton, pastor and lecturer, said last night in an address to the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

It was the club's annual ladies' night meeting and nearly 250 members and their guests attended the dinner session.

"We hear a great deal about fighting to preserve our freedom and democracy, but the added responsibilities of caring for fellow nations gives us something else to fight for," Le Meadows said.

"We are going to be concerned with the living of every other person in the world because we are the world leader," he continued. "We will have many more tasks and we will develop a real sense of caring about others. A few years ago we nearly stopped caring for our own country and nearly lost it. Everything was wrong and we didn't care what happened.

"When the history of France for the period of 1939 to 1945 is written, it will show that France stopped caring for the important things, too, and was overrun by the enemy."

In forming a pattern for the post-war world, we must make the individual realize that his part is important and that he can fit into the picture, he said.

"We must start asking ourselves: 'To what do I belong' rather than 'What belongs to me?' and then tie that philosophy into the great democratic pattern," Le Meadows asserted. "We must avoid a fatalistic philosophy and realize that the future of the new world rests with us who are fitted to live in the old world. It's pretty much up to us."

Dancing to the music of Nels Blocker's orchestra followed the talk.

FULL HOUSE

C. of C. Dinner at 6:30 Today Draws Overflow Crowd.

A capacity audience will greet Col. Willard T. Chevalier, vice president and director of the McGraw-Hill Publishing company and publisher of "Business Week," when he speaks tonight at the annual Mansfield Chamber of Commerce dinner in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Reservations, limited to 350 yesterday, had been extended to the 360 capacity today to meet the demand. Dinner will be served in the ballroom at 6:30 p. m. and tables will be placed on the mezzanine to accommodate the overflow.

The speaker arrived by train from Chicago early today and will leave immediately after the lecture for Cleveland where he addresses the Ad club Wednesday.

The retiring president, Robert C. Remy, will be unable to attend the meeting owing to military duties in the east. Ray M. Calene, new president, will receive the gavel of his office from C. L. Van Derau.

DEATH FOLLOWS LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Ella Snyder, 68, Dies at Home of Sister.

PLYMOUTH — In ill health for several years, Mrs. Ella Viola Snyder, 68, died Monday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Hole, Sandusky street. She was a native of Huron county and a member of the Methodist church at New Haven.

Surviving are another sister, Mrs. Cora Hole of Dayton, Ore., and a brother, Lewis Snyder of Plymouth.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m., Wednesday at the Miller-McQuate funeral home here and at 2:30 p. m., at the New Haven Methodist church by Rev. William Powers. Burial will be in New Haven cemetery.

After indulging in quantities of that currently rare commodity—liquor—a girl roomer at an East Fifth street residence thought it would be swell fun, at 2:30 a. m. today, to burn the house down. Alcoholically flames look pretty lapping skyward in the darkness but fellow roomers refused to concur in the fun, according to a report by Patrolman William Colby. After a male roomer refused to supply the girl more drinks she tucked lighted newspapers under his door, he told Colby. After some persuasive argument, Colby reported, he induced the fun seeker to retire to her room for the rest of the night and abandon her plans to make fire.

Sixth grade pupils at Woodland school have turned to early bird gardening and they have a "crop" of beans and corn growing to prove it. It all came about when Principal C. A. Divelbiss turned a schoolboy prank into an interesting experiment. The "ammunition" several boys had for their bean shooters was gathered up an placed in a water-filled bowl along with some grains of corn. Today both beans and corn have grown into inch-high sprouts.

PRESENTS BILL

Catlett Measure Would Amend Law on County Kennels.

At the request of Attorney Charles Workman, Author Louis Bromfield and others interested in the Angell refuge movement to provide a haven for stray dogs, Representative John L. Catlett yesterday introduced an amendment to the state code covering county-operated kennels.

Catlett's amendment, placed in the house hopper at Columbus yesterday, the last day for filing legislation, would require county commissioners, in the event of accumulation of more than $1,000 in their county kennel fund, to turn over that surplus to such humane agencies or societies as have suitable facilities for the care of stray animals.

Sponsors of the Angell refuge plan here have made frequent requests for county funds in the past but all requests have been rejected by the county commissioners, who control kennel funds.

DESTROYER TO HONOR HEROES

Will Be Named 'The Sullivans' for Five Missing Brothers.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — A new destroyer—the U. S. S. The Sullivans—will go into action in the near future to perpetuate the names of the five fighting Sullivan boys of Waterloo, Iowa, all of whom are listed as missing in naval action.

The navy announced today that President Roosevelt has approved the naming of a new destroyer after the five sons of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Sullivan. The five boys — determined to serve throughout the war together — been listed as missing since the cruiser Juneau, on which they were shipmates, was sunk in action off the Solomons in November.

The mother of the five heroes will sponsor the new warship.

FLAMES HIT EVANSVILLE INSTITUTION

Dangerous Patients Rounded Up, Others Are Found Wandering Streets.

(By United Press)

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — The Evansville state hospital, housing approximately 1,180 mental patients, virtually was destroyed by fire early today, but authorities said there were "no deaths so far as we know."

Dangerous patients were rounded up by police and volunteers, and were placed in a separate building from others. Police placed a cordon around the building.

Other patients found wandering on the hospital grounds were taken to other shelters.

Only two wings were undamaged by flames which spread throughout the rambling, two-story brick structure.

About 150 firemen and all the emergency police available were sent to the hospital. The cause of the fire had not been determined, but apparently started in the main building, from which extend several wings.

Firemen believed that the entire structure might be demolished if flames continued to spread.

The hospital is enclosed by a high wall, but many inmates were found wandering in night clothes about the streets in the vicinity. State and local police, cruising the neighborhood in squad cars, picked them up and took them either to police headquarters or the county jail. Some of the inmates were found hiding in shrubbery.

Authorities declined to comment on the possibility that the fire was started by an inmate.

He Named His Son Adolf Hitler, Not 'Shicklegruber'!

NEW YORK — (INS) — Joseph Mittel, an American citizen living in Queens and of German-Austrian extraction explained today just why he had named his son, born Jan. 23, Adolf Hitler Mittel.

Sharp-eyed reporters scanning routine birth certificates caught the name and called on Mittel, a 37-year-old wood worker who has been unable to work since 1941 because of an injured left leg.

"The real Adolf Hitler doesn't mean anything to me," Mittel said, "but I'm of German-Austrian descent and that's one reason why I picked the name.

"I don't think the name will be a handicap because after all there are lots of people named after persons in the same category as Hitler, such as Napoleon, Caesar and others.

"My son will grow up to be a good man despite the name.

"Anyhow, Hitler is not that fellow's name. His name is Schickle-Gruber."

BETTY HANSEN WILL GO HOME

Flynn Accusers Join Parents; Actor Rests After Trial.

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — Betty Hansen, 17, who charged that Screen Star Errol Flynn attacked her, today prepared to return to her home in Lincoln, Neb.

Los Angeles county probation officers signed papers which released the Hansen girl from prospects of being held at the girls' detention home until she reached 21. Peggy LaRue Satterlee, 17, who also testified against Flynn in the morals case, has returned to her parents at Applegate, Cal., where her father is a railroad man.

Flynn, acquitted of charges involving the two teen-age girls, was still "resting" from ordeals of the four-week trial.

COCCO WILL APPEAL

CANTON — (AP) — Counsel for Dominic Cocco, 32, of Bellaire, notified common pleas court his first degree murder conviction in the May 24 holdup slaying of cafe operator Robert Efinger would be appealed. Cocco was taken to Ohio penitentiary in Columbus yesterday to await execution, scheduled May 24.

WOMEN IN WAR WORK THEME OF D. A. R. MEET

Mrs. Leopold Adams Presents Subject at Round Table Discussion at Women's Club; Have Dessert-Luncheon Prior to Program.

WAR TIME ACTIVITIES of the Red Cross were outlined to members of the Mary Washington chapter of the D. A. R. when they met for a salad luncheon Monday at 1 o'clock at the Women's Club. Mrs. Charles Nail, Mrs. A. T. Strickler, Mrs. Robert Black and Mrs. George Anson were hostesses for the luncheon. Mrs. George Mead and Mrs. David N. Feiser presided at a long table, which was attractively centered with red carnations.

Mrs. David N. Roller, the regent, opened the meeting and welcomed as guests representatives of the various activities of the Red Cross. In leading the devotions, Mrs. H. H. Sanford paid tribute to Abraham Lincoln for leading this nation through a war "with malice toward none and charity for all" and also paid tribute to George Washington, ending with Washington's prayer. Mrs. P. B. Dietrichson led the salute to the flag.

Mrs. Roller turned the program over to Mrs. V. E. Vining, program chairman for the meeting, who in turn introduced Mrs. Leopold, chairman of all volunteer service of the Red Cross.

After Mrs. Adams spoke briefly on the amount of work done by all services, she introduced the following chairmen, who described the activities of their groups: Mrs. W. J. Bishop, junior Red Cross chairman and first aid program; Mrs. George Draffan, nurses' aid chairman; Mrs. O. H. Schettler, representing motor corps; Mrs. Henry Talmage, chairman of speakers' bureau; Mrs. W. B Ford, nutrition chairman; Miss Esther Barnett, secretary, home service and service to the armed forces; Mrs. Beatrice Balliett, office secretary; Mrs. Richard Treisch, canteen chairman; Mrs. William Layton, chairman of staff assistance corps; Mrs. Roller, in behalf of Mrs. J. B. Simons, home nursing chairman, and Miss Miriam Hooper, executive secretary, who spoke on disaster.

The program was followed by a business session at which delegates were named to the state convention at Columbus, March 15, 16 and 17. Delegates were also named to the national convention to be held in Cincinnati in April.

Contributions were made for the work at Ellis Island in charge of Mrs George Mead. Books were collected to be sent to the armed forces by Mrs. R. G. Averill, in behalf of the U. S. O.

The next meeting of the club will be held on March 1 at the Women's Club

Wedding Service Read Feb. 2 In S. C.

Mrs. Dan Reiter, Rhein avenue, is announcing the marriage of her daughter, Margie Hatfield, to Sgt Fred S. Zombatfalvy, which took place Feb. 2 in an open church ceremony at Paris Island, S. C.

Alfred Degrott Vogler, U. S. navy chaplain, read the single ring ceremony. The bride was attired in a green tailored suit with brown accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of Talisman rose buds. Her only jewelry was a sweetheart necklace, the gift of the bridegroom.

The former Miss Hatfield was employed by Clark's Controller in Cleveland. Before entering the service Mr. Zombatfalvy was an employe of the Higbee store in Cleveland. At present, the young couple are making their home at Paris Island.

Miss Fern Zaros Reveals Betrothal

Announcement is being made today of the engagement of Miss Fern Zaros, daughter of Mrs. Demetra Zaros, 26 West Augustine avenue, to Nicholas Aygoustas, nephew of George Mavromatis, 582 Johns avenue.

The engagement was evealed by a party given at the home of the bride-elect Saturday evening, by her mother, for approximately 30 relatives of the couple. Miss Zaros is a graduate of Mansfield Senior High school. The date of the wedding will be announced in the near future.

Mrs. S. E. Gordon Celebrates 90th Birthday At Home

Mrs. Sarah E. Gordon, 550 West Fourth street, celebrated her 90th birthday yesterday, surrounded by her children, one from this city, and two from out of town. The family observed the anniversary with a quiet dinner.

Mrs. Gordon's children, who came to Mansfield to be with their mother on her birthday are Mrs. Harry A. Dalby of Gary, Ind., Mrs. Walter B. Patterson of Springfield, and Herbert E. Gordon of McKeesport, Pa. Mrs. Gordon lives with another daughter, Miss Minnie E. Gordon.

Coming here from McKeesport, Mrs. Gordon has lived here, enjoying the best of health for the past 23 years. She has been active in the Episcopal church, until the last two or three years. She enjoys reading, and does a lot of it, and her radio. Mrs. Gordon is the grandmother of ten children and the great grandmother of seven children.

Hear Book Review At Club Meeting

Mrs. W. M. Layton reviewed William Alexander Percy's book, "Lanterns on the Levee," at the Victorian club meeting yesterday afternoon at the Women's Club.

The recollections of a planter's son, in which the history of the Mississippi delta region is traced from early times to the present, Mr. Percy's book is considered by critics as an indispensable addition to the record of southern life and tradition.

Action to participate in the Victory book campaign by bringing books to the next meeting, Feb. 22, at the home of Mrs. O. D. Steil, 25 Pinecrest boulevard, was taken during the business meeting. Mrs. Irl Fischer will also discuss "The Presidents of Ohio," at that time.

Mrs John Finefrock, president of the club, presided during the session.

Mrs. Reifenberg Entertains In Honor Of Sister

At a dinner given in the home of Mrs. Joseph Reifenberg, 216 Rhein avenue, last evening, friend learned of the approaching marriage of Miss Hortense Perl, daughter of Otto A. Perl, 157 Lexington avenue, and sister of Mrs. Reifenberg.

Miss Perl will become the bride of Joseph C. Drilling, son of Mrs. Nell Drilling of Shelby, at the St. Peter's church at 9:30 a. m. Saturday, March 6.

Dinner was served at a long table attractively decorated with valentine appointments and a centerpiece of red and white flowers and tapers. Individual corsages of red and white carnations contained the announcement on a valentine, which was also used as a placecard.

Contract and auction bridge was played at four tables. Prizes were won by Miss Grace Crotty, Mrs. B. J. Milum, Mrs. John Newcomer, Mrs. Clem Wehinger, and Mrs. Charles Whisler. Miss Perl was presented a personal gift.

Among the parties planned for Miss Perl will be one given by Mrs. Milum, Feb. 15, with Mrs. Newcomer and Mrs. G. C. Wehinger as associate hostesses.

Present Picture At Legion Meeting

Members of the Mothers' club of the American Legion auxiliary presented a picture of "Whistler's Mother" to the auxiliary at its regular meeting last night in the Legion home.

Presentation was made by Mrs. Margery Ludwig with Mrs. Marie Dickson, auxiliary president, accepting it. The reverse side of the picture bore the names of Mothers' club members.

At the business session, it was voted to contribute to the Red Cross War fund. A report was given that six young women had received application blanks from the auxiliary for service in the WAACs.

The next meeting will be a guest session in the Legion home, Feb. 22.

WITH MRS. BOOKMAN.

A new member was welcomed into the War Relief committee of the Women of the Moose at its meeting last evening at the home of Mrs May Bookman, East Fourth street. She is Mrs. Sister DeWeese. Auxiliary Lou Fockler, of Portland Maine, was the only guest. She was presented with the guest prize. Following the business session, cards were played. Prizes were won by Mrs. Mary Zeller and Mrs. Hazel Tupps, who also won the door prize. A centerpiece of sweet peas was used at the table where luncheon was served. Mrs. Zona Gossom will entertain the committee at the March 1 meeting. The place will be announced later.

ZETA CHAPTER GIVES FINAL PLEDGE PARTY

Miss Patricia Oberlander and Miss Jeannette Werner Entertain Pledges of Zeta Chapter of Tri Gamma Sorority With Outdoor Party.

AN OUTDOOR EVENT was the final pledge party given by the Zeta chapter of Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority in honor of the three new pledges, Miss Judy Kelley, Miss Maxene Williams and Miss Ruth Mengert.

Following a long hike, the girls reported back to the home of Miss Patricia Oberlander, Wellington avenue. Miss Ethel Mae Bogan, pledge mistress, conducted the meeting, and informed the pledges of their duties to be performed during "hell week," which is held from Feb. 8 to and including Feb. 15. This will be concluded with rough initiation on Feb. 15 at the Gamma chapter club rooms on Main street.

Games were played in the late afternoon with prizes being awarded to the Misses Frances Brown, Adaline Wilging and Lillian Art.

When an informal buffet luncheon was served, the clever idea was used for each girl to find her own beverage. On the cups were sayings and descriptions of the individual, which enabled her to locate her own cup. The remainder of the party was spent socially. Hostesses were Miss Patricia Oberlander and Miss Jeannette Werner.

The next regular meeting of the Zeta chapter will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 10, at the home of Miss Frances Brown, 560 West Third street.

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"That's easy," Adams said with a grin. "I'll tell him you sent me to the secret service office to ask some man there to call you up. That will give him something to think about. Give me the name of some man over there and I'll go to his office, but of course I won't say anything."

"But I want you to," my father said surprisingly. "We want to make this thing fool proof, in case Milner might take it into his head to check up later. You don't think he'll have you trailed?"

"Not a chance. He hasn't trailers enough anyway, so he won't waste one on somebody he thinks is okay."

My father then wrote a name on the back of a card and handed it to Adams.

"Do the bank errand first," he said, "then go to the government building and see this man. Ask him to telephone me at exactly 8 o'clock tonight. Then, after you report that to Milner, he can enjoy himself by listening in."

"He sure will be on his toes at eight o'clock," Adams said, then stiffened to attention as my father handed him the folded paper on which Georges had written his message.

Trap For Milner.

Purposely, this is not in an envelope," my father said, "and to get in to see the bank officials you may have to use this badge. But put it away carefully now, and do not use it unless you need to." And he took a badge from an inside pocket and gave it to Adams.

"When you have reached here," my father went on, "tell them the man whose name is signed to the note is in danger, that he cannot appear in public, and that he wishes one of them to come here—give them this room number—as soon as possible.

"Impress upon them that the man who comes must not go to the desk but come right up in the elevator. If he is stopped, tell him to say, 'I am going to the Graham suite.' I think that covers everything, except that haste is indicated."

Adams did not need the reminder, but left quickly and when he had gone 'the Chief' looked contemplatively at Georges.

"I think your funds are safe now," he said. "When either of the men comes, tell him about the impostor who may be expected to appear at the bank and that Halloran says the man looks more like you than you do yourself, and has practiced forging your signature. You would better give him some secret code you will always use in the written requests for money which you probably will send him from time to time."

"I suppose," Georges said, "that they will have the man arrested when he comes to the bank."

"Indeed they will not," my father said emphatically, to the patent bewilderment of Georges and Halloran, but it was a decision I expected, for I have long known his methods.

Spencer Explains His Plan.

"You see," my father explained, "this impersonator, whoever he may be, is not playing a lone hand, at least the odds are a thousand to one against it. And if he is trailed when he leaves the bank, there will be a good chance of finding the men behind him."

"But," Georges asked, "won't he grow suspicious and go into hiding when the bank refuses to give him money?"

"If I have my way, the bank will give him money," my father said calmly, and at Georges' blank stare put a question.

"Do you mind telling me how much money you have in that bank?" he asked.

"In cash and bonds and other securities, about a quarter of a million," Georges replied.

"And how much of that," my father went on, "would you risk, to be able to destroy your enemies and walk in freedom again?"

The next meeting, March 8, in the church parlors will be with Mrs. Ollie Evans and Mrs. Marian McClure.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Feb. 10.

A day on which any sort of drastic, high-handed or ruthless tactics may lead to downfall, defeat and regret is indicated by the planetary aspects. There may be public penalties since this conduct seems to be outside accepted regulations. Work discreetly, with diplomacy and good judgment, averting defeat and failure.

Those whose birthday it is may have a chance to suddenly place affairs on a solid and secure foundation by the use of diplomacy, sound judgment and reason rather than a disposition to flaunt all accepted rules and regulations.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on discomfort after meals, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin, as directed on label or as your doctor advises, and feel world's better. Get genuine Dr. Caldwell's.

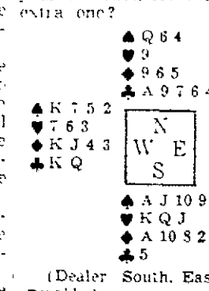
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T RISK 2 FOR 1

If you can make your contract by ruffing a couple of losers in dummy, it is silly to try a trump finesse which may give your opponents a chance to knock out one of those vital cards and leave you able to ruff only one. Of course if the finesse works, you get an extra trick. But if it does not you are down one. That is sound advice for rubber bridge, and also for total-point duplicate play. Do you know when to violate it, and risk two tricks, including your contract, for the sake of an extra one?



(Dealer South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♥
3 ♦	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

After East won the heart 7 lead with his A, he led the spade 3 and South, from force of habit, finessed, playing low. The K won and West returned the spade 2. South won with the A, but now realized he had only one trump left in dummy for ruffing. He discarded two diamonds on his heart K and Q, scored the diamond A, then ruffed the diamond 2 with the spade Q. But can you now find any way to keep West from taking two diamond tricks? Neither could South, so he was down one.

When that spade came to him on the second trick, South should have used his A, so as to assure having two trumps in the dummy for ruffing. Two diamonds could have been trashed from dummy on the heart K and Q, then the diamond A scored, the 2 ruffed by the spade 6, the club A taken, a club ruffed, then the diamond 8 ruffed by the spade Q. If East had held the K and could over-ruff that, he would have been taking a trick which South could afford to give him anyway. This play would have assured the contract.

The only time to finesse that spade on the second trick would have been in a match-point game in which South was shooting for top scores and willing to risk a bottom, but it never should have been done in rubber bridge.

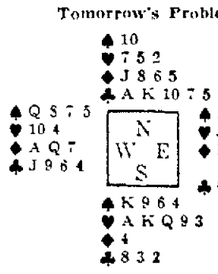
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer, East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is South's correct plan for 4-Spades on this deal after West leads to the spade A and East returns the heart 6?

How to Make a Splendid Cough Syrup at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough medicine. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Two Ohio Kids Get 46 Points

Scoring Sprees Mark Scholastic Caging.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Scintillating individual scoring sprees featured Ohio's torrid high school basketball program last week, from which seven Class A quintets and 17 Class B teams (of the total of 1152) emerged without a blemish.

* * *

Fred Hirsimaki, brother of Coach Charles Hirshey of East Conneaut Rowe's Vikings, poured 21 two-pointers and four free throws into the hoop to beat Pierpont 102 to 86, while Jim Woods of Liberty matched that 46-point total against the alumni quintet.

Eddie Jones, Smithfield's Negro star, scored 39 in the 74-47 conquest of Amsterdam, but among the larger schools the laurels went to Jack Shaw of East Cleveland Shaw and Hank Vaughn of Akron Central. Shaw hit the basket for 35 points in the 52-24 win over Shaker Heights. Vaughn scored 32 as Central beat Akron Buchtel 55-22.

Other high-scoring performances included: Dom Venetta, Warren, 22; Howard Hock, Van Buren, 30; Dick Mulvaine, Marion, 19; Red Miller, Newell, 31; Charley Heskett, Galion, 24; Jack Wilson, Xenia Central, 24; Harry Anderson, Akron Kenmore, 27 and 24; Jake Trevler, Greentown, 29.

D. Gregory, Vinton Rural's adding machine, has the state's No. 1 total—349 in 17 games and 1196 for his high school career. Other top-flighters are: Venetta, 193 in 13; Joe Jacobs, Toledo Central, 243 in 15; Jim Wells, Middletown, 159 in 13; Fred Trask, Findlay, 172 in 12; Hirsimaki, 269 in 13; Dick Mulvaine, Marion, 176 in 10; Bob Brown, East Liverpool, 179 in 13; George (Buster) Wolf, Chester, 240 in 13; Ron Tucker, Centerburg, 239 in 15; Jack Mitchell, Plain City, 225 in 18; Woods of Liberty, 239 in 11; Vaughn, 235 in 12; and Harold Musser of Doylestown, 235 in 16.

While the individuals were putting on their show, North Canton (14), Martins Ferry and Defiance (12), Bexley and Greenfield (10), Berea (9) and Cleveland South (8) remained unbeaten in Class A. Wadsworth dropped from the clean class by losing to Barberton.

Close on the heels of the leaders, and certain to create a bit of disturbance when tournament time comes around, were these squads:

Class A: Youngstown South, Wadsworth, and Cincinnati Purcell, 12-1; Toledo Macomber, 11-1; Newton Falls and Boardman, 10-1; Steubenville Central Catholic, 9-1; Newark, 13-2; Barnesville, 12-2; Middletown, Dover, Steubenville and Scienceville, 11-2; Ironton, 10-2; Canton McKinley and Dayton Wilbur Wright, 9-2; Western Reserve Academy, Ashland, Van Wert and Portsmouth Central Catholic, 8-2; Dayton Fairview, 7-2; Xenia Central (defending Class A champion), 11-3; Tiltonville and Warren, 10-3; Akron North, Canton Lehman, Akron Centra land Findlay, 9-3; Dayton Roosevelt 8-3, and Canton Timken, 11-4.

Class B: Belpre, 14-1; Terrace Park and Wintersville, 13-1; Chester, Waynesburg, 12-1; Willshire and Dalton, 11-1; Bremen, Fredericktown, 10-1; Bluffton, 9-1; Claridon, 8-1; Lancaster St. Mary, 16-2; Plainvile, 15-2; Mineral Ridge, 13-2; Amherst, E. Conneaut Rowe, Ottawa Public, Bristol and Sebring, 12-2; Bergholz, St. Henry, Braceville, Gustavus and Hartville, 11-2; Columbiana, North Lima, Canton St. John and Bazatta, 10-2; Yorkville, 15-3; Newark St. Francis, 13-3.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—As we figure it, that week-end fuss over cancelling the Kentucky Derby amounted to nothing more than a warning that the railroads couldn't take care of the comparatively few spectators who usually travel that way. . . . The best figures we can get show that no more than 9,000 people go to Louisville by rail in normal years. About 60 per cent of the crowd—say 45,000 out of 75,000—is drawn from within 100 miles of Churchill Downs and most of them as well as the "outsiders" ride in automobiles, which won't be heading for the Downs this year. . . . What it all probably means is that the thousands of Louisvillians who never see their own race because they don't want to mingle with the mob or are too busy collecting all the spare change the visitors bring in will fill up the vacant spaces in the grandstand. And, of course, there are several soldiers only 30 miles away at Fort Knox who might be interested in watching a Derby.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Hal Middlesworth, Oklahoma City Oklahoman: "California officials, debeating whether 'lady wrestlers' should operate in their state finally decided they should be 'real ladies' and not those of questionable character. . . . Now who's going to define 'lady' and 'questionable character'?"

HORSES OF ANOTHER COLOR.

With Bowie definitely shut down and Laurel and Havre De Grace unlikely to operate, it appears that Maryland racing will be confined to Pimlico. . . . And even the old hilltop track may have its troubles with street car transportation.... Transit company officials went into a huddle with the racing commission the other day and came up with a suggestion for noon to 4 p. m. racing so that homeward-bound fans could use the same cars that were going downtown to defense plants. . . . Adding a touch of normalcy, Bud Burmester who picked 'em 1-2-3 for the 1941 Derby, already is calling Ocean Wave, Blue Swords and Askmenow for this year's run.

OHIO GETS FEATURE HARNESS EVENTS

NEW YORK —(AP)— Trotting and pacing on the grand circuit this year apparently will be confined largely to Ohio.

Although the circuit's board of stewards probably will not meet until early March to decide definitely on dates and sites, the sport's major league now shapes up something like this: Five weeks at North Randall near Cleveland starting early in July; three days at Goshen's mile track the week of Aug. 9 during which the $40,000 Hambletonian will be renewed, followed by sessions at Delaware, Ohio, Duquoin, Ill., and possibly York, Pa., Sept. 14-17. Welaware intends to ask for Sept. 21-24 dates.

Wood Falls In Club League

Hilborn Chalks Up 681 Series and 254 Game.

The wood was falling in the Club league last night at Colony alleys, and a lot of it dropped before Art Hilborn's ball, which was back in the groove after behaving badly for two weeks.

Hilborn took scoring honors with a 681 total on games of 190-254-237. His 254 was high game for the league.

C. Reap, who had a 244 and 232 game was next with 636 while Negle piled up 613 and Brig Young 600. There was 20 200 games.

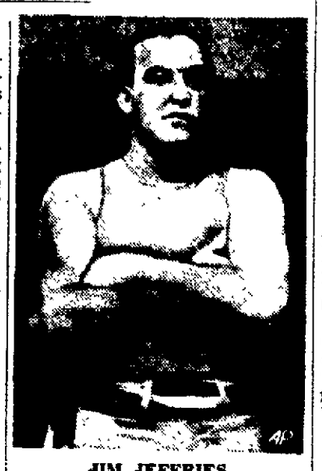
Four games are on tap tonight in the Senior Church loop. Central Methodist tangles with Grace Gospel in a third place fight; Congregational goes against St. Matthew's; First Lutheran faces Baptist, and leading St. John's battles St. Luke's.

Jeffries and Fitzsimmons Rate as Terrific Hitters

By JAMES J. JOHNSTON
(AP Features)



JIM JEFFRIES

Freckled - faced, broad - shouldered, spindle-legged Bob Fitzsimmons discovered his now famous solar plexus punch when he knocked out Jim Corbett.

Fitz was an ungainly, knock-kneed, bald young man with long arms and a knockout punch at the end of them. He had a peculiar style and was easy to hit but if he hit you first, you seldom recovered. Fitz's style was bothersome to his foes. He was always shuffling in, trying to get you to lead, and then countering with a terrific hook to the stomach that knocked the breath out of you. He'd stun you with the punch and was quick to see that you were ready for his short right hand that always followed to your chin. Fighters rarely got up after that one.

He was about six feet tall but never weighed more than 170, Fitz had shoulders like a giant, but from his shoulders and chest down he tapered off until he had practically no hips. His legs were long and boney, and as he shuffled toward his opponent, he appeared more knock-kneed than ever. This gave him great hitting power.

* * *

Fitz never bothered to block punches. He relied upon his eyes to see what you had to send his way and he would try to get you to punch at him the way he wanted, then counter with his favorite left hook.

Fitzsimmons' one fault was that he himself was easy to hit, he took chances with knockout punches. Although he would annoy Joe Louis with his crouching style, I would say that Ruby Robert would have been a kayo victim of the Brown Bomber.

Now we come to big, hairy, rugged and powerful Jim Jeffries, a good boxer, and a fairly good hitter who could take a terrific punch. A six footer, 210 pounds of bone and muscle.

Jeff beat Fitz for the crown at Coney Island. Martin Julian, Fitzsimmons' manager, told me one story of Fitz—how an hour or so before the fight, he asked to meet Jeff, whom he had never seen.

* * *

They knocked on Jeffries' dressing room door and were told to wait a minute. They heard some moving around inside, then the door opened. In the far corner of a dimly lighted room, on a rubbing table, lay a hairy and powerful man, Jeffries, naked, a living picture of a modern Hercules. As Fitz entered, Jeffries sprang from the table as lithe as a panther, ran across the room with his hand extended and bellowed to the champion, "Hello, Bob." Then, without another word, he ran back to the rubbing table. Fitz gazed at the big fellow as in a daze, then walked out.

Fitz was silent as he undressed but finally he said to Julian: "E's a big fellow, ain't he. My, e's a big lad, powerful too, I'll bet."

After the seventh round of the fight, in which Fitz was being beaten although he had punched Jeffries' face out of shape. Fitz said to Julian: "I'll try to knock 'im over this round."

Late in the round he landed his left hook and Jeff started to slump. Fitz shot his right hand to Jeff's face as the bell rang and the second sprang into the ring to carry Jeff back to his stool. But Jeff was okay when the eighth round started and went on to win the title.

Jeffries' style would suit Louis. Louis is a great counter puncher and Jeff would do all the leading which would make a Jeffries-Louis contest a real classic. But I am sure Louis would have beaten Jeffries, the best day Jeff ever saw, but only after a gruelling contest.

Badgers Set New Record

Indiana and Illinois Continue Win Streaks.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—There can be no "ceiling" on Big Ten basketball scores as long as the University of Chicago remains a member of the conference.

That fact became established today after the woefully weak Chicago quintet had served as the "guinea pig" of another point-making experiment, this time by Wisconsin.

The Badgers temporarily overshadowed the bitter battle of Indiana and Illinois for the Big Ten lead by establishing a new all-time scoring record last night as they trounced Chicago 74 to 30 at Madison. The Badgers' point-making orgy broke a mark which Indiana set only two weeks ago when it rolled up 71 points at the expense of Iowa.

While Wisconsin was handing Chicago its 36th consecutive conference defeat, Indiana and Illinois prolonged their winning streaks. The Hoosiers made it eight in a row by trimming Michigan 48 to 33 and Illinois chalked up its seventh straight by besting Ohio State 50 to 44. In a non-league game, Great Lakes won from Northwestern 57 to 36.

Johnny Kotz, Wisconsin forward who established an individual conference scoring record a season ago, led the Badgers with 25 points.

Sophomore Ward Williams and the veteran Irv Swanson combined to pace Indiana to another decisive triumph. Williams and Swanson divided scoring honors with 12 points each.

Ralph Hamilton, the Hoosiers' ace point-maker in early games, found himself shackled again by the great defensive play of Sophomore Dave Strack. Hamilton scored three field goals in the first period and then was limited to a pair of free throws in the final half.

The loss was Michigan's fifth in six conference starts.

Following the pattern it set in the first game of the series Saturday night Ohio State went out in front of Illinois mid-way through the initial period, but couldn't hold the margin. After 10 minutes of play the Bucks led 12 to 10, but then Illinois began to click and forged in front 26 to 19 at halftime.

Soon after the start of the second half Illinois boosted its lead to 33 to 20 and Ohio State didn't cut into that advantage until late in the game.

Andy Phillip, the conference's leading individual scorer, was held to eight points, his lowest total of the season. Art Mathisen and Ken Menke paced the victorys with 17 and 13 points respectively. Sophomore Jack Dugger was high for Ohio State with 14 points.

Great Lakes' victory over Northwestern avenged one of the two losses the Sailors have suffered this season. The Wildcats trimmed them 59 to 47 a month ago, but were no match for the Bluejackets in the return.

Mighty Casey Strikes Out

Hero of Famous Poem Meets Death at 80.

By BILL ZIMMERMAN

WASHINGTON—(INS)— There is no joy in Mudville—mighty Casey has struck out.

Eighty-year-old Daniel M. Casey, who is credited with inspiring the famous poem "Mighty Casey At The Bat" is dead today. He died at George Washington hospital following a long illness.

It was back in 1897 in Philadelphia that the now never-to-be-forgotten Casey incident occurred that was immortalized in poetry by Ernest L. Thayer, a sports writer.

The Phillies were playing the New York Giants for the championship. The Giants were leading 4 to 3. The bases were loaded with two out in the 9th when Dan Casey, who was pitching for "Mudville" came to bat. The fans were pinning their hopes on Casey for just the week before he had socked out a home run to win a game from Boston under similar circumstances. Theyer, who was covering the game, wrote in his poem:

"And when responding to the cheers,
"He lightly doffed his hat,
"No stranger in the crowd could doubt
"'Twas Casey at the bat."

"But try as I might I couldn't even touch the ball," Casey sadly recalled in a radio broadcast several years ago. "I went out, one, two, three."

Casey, who pitched 52 games for the Phils that year, winning 38, retired from baseball several years afterward and later moved to nearby Silver Springs, Md.

Dan was taken to the hospital last September but after having two strikes called on him he fooled the "umpire" on that trip to the plate. His illness came back, however, and he took the third strike last night.

"And somewhere men are laughing,
"And somewhere children shout
"But there is no joy in Mudville—
"Mighty Casey has struck out."

MARKET KEEPS TO HIGH ROAD

Bolstering Factor Found In 23 Per Cent Increase In Individual Income.

NEW YORK—(UP)—Stocks generally tilted a trifle higher in today's early market proceeding.

Up fractionally were Anaconda, General Motors, U. S. Steel and General Foods.

Boardrooms found a bolstering trend factor in the disclosure of the commerce department that income payments to individual rose to $113,824,000,000 in 1942, an increase of 23 per cent over the preceding year.

THEATERS

Thrilling Drama.

The days before the Yanks arrived at Casablanca, much less the president of the United States for a war conference later, are pictured in the Ohio attraction, "Casablance," starring Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman and Paul Henreid. Later the action transfers to the present day city when the people of many nations attempt to use the famous French Morocan seaport as a way of exit from their oppressed countries. Paul Henreid appears as a Czech leader of the underground movement. Miss Bergman as his wife, and Bogart as an American cafe owner in the seaport city.

Stage Band.

Bob Chester and his band hold forth on the Madison stage today for four performances at 3:05 p. m., 5:20 p. m., 7:35 p. m., and 9:40 p. m. The film bill will be topped by "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," showing today only. Richard Carlson and Martha Driscoll are featured. The Chester orchestra that rapidly rose to fame after it was organized since 1935 carries two soloists, Betty Bradley and Gene Howard. Chester is the step-son of Albert Fisher, retired president of the Fisher Body corporation of Detroit.

War Adventure.

"Desperate Journey," the story of five RAF fliers downed on enemy territory, concludes its showing today at the Ritz. Errol Flynn and Ronald Reagan head the cast and the supporting players include Nancy Coleman and Raymond Massey. The latter appears as a German intelligence officer against whom the fliers match their wits. "Priorities On Parade," with Ann Miller, Jerry Colonna and Vera Vague is the second attraction.

Film Musical.

A light plot embellishes "Rhythm Parade," the top attraction at the Park theater, for the group of entertainers who hold at the Florentine Gardens in Hollywood is the main attraction. The entire floor show has been filmed for the picture and the acts include Ted Fio Rita and his orchestra, with the famous Niles T. Granlund as master of ceremonies. Gale Storm, Cliff Nazarro and Margaret Dumont are in the cast. "The Fighting Devil Dogs" is the co-feature.

Your Federal Income Tax

INTEREST DEDUCTIONS
(Part 2)

While interest paid or accrued during the year is generally deductible from gross income, for federal income tax purposes, certain interest payments are not allowable deductions.

Interest which is NOT DEDUCTIBLE is interest paid on behalf of another where there is no legal obligation to make such payment. Thus, interest paid on behalf of a relative to avoid the foreclosure of a loan would not be deductible, unless the taxpayer were liable for the interest under the terms of the loan (as comaker or as indorser). In the absence of a legal obligation on the part of the taxpayer such payments are regarded in the nature of a gift to the person liable on the loan.

Interest payable to a life insurance company for a policy loan is not deductible if the amount of the interest is simply added to the amount of the loan, nor is interest deductible if on indebtedness incurred or continued to purchase a single premium life insurance or endowment contract. Interest on indebtedness incurred to purchase or carry tax-exempt securities is likewise not deductible. Such loans include in general state and municipal bonds and certain obligations of the United States. The only exception to this provision is the case of loans to purchase or carry tax-exempt obligations of the United States issued after Sept. 24, 1917, to which the taxpayer was an original subscriber.

Interest paid on a note, executed as a gift, is not deductible since such promissory notes are held to be a mere promise to make a gift in the future, and not a legal obligation.

To be deductible interest must be paid or accrued during the year for which the return is made. If the taxpayer is on the cash receipts and disbursements basis, then the interest must have been paid during the year. Back interest, not paid and deducted in a prior year, would, however, be allowable. If the taxpayer is on the accrual basis the interest must have accrued during the year.

Dim-Out Dance Makes Big Hit With Couples

BELFAST (AP)—Could be that a new fad for dances was devised by accident here recently.

While a U. S. army band was playing at a charity dance the electric lights failed. The musicians obtained a kerosene lamp and placed it in the center of the platform. Candles were placed around the dance floor.

They borrowed flashlights to read the music. At the end of each number the flashlights were extinguished to conserve the batteries. Everyone had such a good time that they extended the dance an extra hour.

DO THIS! To relieve discomforts, one of the best things you can do is put a good spoonful of home-tested Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water.

Then feel the wonderful relief come as you breathe in the steaming medicated vapors that penetrate to the cold-congested upper breathing passages! See how this soothes irritation, quiets coughing, and helps clear the head—bringing grand comfort.

FOR ADDED RELIEF . . . rub throat, chest and back with VapoRub at bedtime. Vicks VapoRub works for hours—2 ways at once—to bring relief from distress. Remember—it's Vicks VapoRub you want.

Record Budget Request, Giant Surplus Stirs Embarrassing Questions.

divisions — counties, townships, cities and villages. Much of this money, it was argued, came from the 3 per cent sales tax, and really belonged to those subdivisions, with the state acting only as a collection agency.

Gov. Bricker took the stand that he could not release the money—that it would have to be appropriated by the legislature, which ordinarily meets but once in two years. And he refused on several occasions, when hard-pressed cities and counties renewed their demands for their share of that surplus, to call a special session of the legislature.

Today, then, to those taxpayers who are studying the cost of government—and taxpayers are the fellows who foot all such bills—the Bricker record of expenditures and the Bricker surplus are topics of unusual importance.

Let's look at the 1934-44 budget. It was sent to the legislature last week by Gov. Bricker. In it, he asked for appropriations of $366,028,921, the largest sum, as has been said, ever asked by an Ohio governor.

It was $21,387,225 more than the state actually spent in the two years ending in 1942.

To meet this stupendous budget request, the governor proposed to use all of the $45,000,000 surplus which has been accumulated. Thus, the governor estimated that the state would have a surplus of only some $340,000 of surplus left at the end of 1944.

An administration fiscal expert, however, hastened to explain that $19,111,000 had been set up in the budget request for building improvements and repairs, principally to state welfare buildings, but that probably not more than $2,000,000 could be spent due to a government building restriction on building and shortages of building materials. Thus the surplus will actually be, the spokesman pointed out, about $17,000,000.

It might be argued that with a surplus of $45,000,000 on hand now, Bricker had saved the people of Ohio money. But the figures show that he hasn't—that he has already spent more than any other governor in the history of Ohio, and now proposes to top it.

Then how did this surplus come about?

"We have adhered to the previous policy of estimating revenues on a conservative basis. I am convinced that this policy is more imperative now than ever before because of the war with its many uncertainties.

"This fiscal policy of conservatism is estimating revenues, plus the practice of keeping expenditures even below conservative appropriations has made possible our surplus in the general revenue fund."

Gov. Bricker's conservative policy brought about an estimate of taxes to be paid into the state general fund in 1941, two years ago, of $139,345,250. Actually, collections were $158,799,544, an excess of $19,454,294.

In 1942, this same conservative policy brought an estimate of tax income of $142,881,740. Actual income was $169,760,719, an excess of $26,278,979.

Add the excess collections in those two years and you have $45,733,273. That figure alone accounts for the surplus.

As one Columbus correspondent, writing about the surplus and Gov. Bricker's economy pointed out, budget-making is an art and one not too well understood by most legislators, and hardly at all by the general public.

But if the budget submitted two years ago had contained any indication that there would be a surplus of $45,000,000 there would have been a spontaneous demand by legislators for either larger expenditures or reductions in taxes.

But Bricker estimated the surplus would be only $46,451. He was "conservative."

Tomorrow—A recapitulation of Gov. Bricker's spending record compared with that of Martin L. Davey.

SEE NO EXCUSE FOR SUFFERING THREE DISEASES

Health Officials Point Out Immunization Program Would Benefit All.

Claiming an enviable record for 1942 in their battle against acute communicable diseases, Dr. W. B. Wild and attaches of the city health department "can see no valid excuse any of our citizens could offer to justify a case of smallpox, diphtheria or typhoid fever."

This statement is contained in the annual report of Dr. Wild, city-county health commissioner, who cited that the 1942 total of 249 cases of such diseases in Mansfield represented a "victory" over the 1941 total of 1,567 cases and two deaths. There were no deaths from these causes last year.

Diseases in 1942 were classified as follows: diphtheria 12, epidemic meningitis 0, measles 98, scarlet fever, 40, typhoid fever five; whooping cough 94; polio or infantile paralysis, and smallpox none. It can be pointed out" the report says, "that the incidence of diphtheria and typhoid fever is still too high. There were 40 cases of smallpox recorded in 1939 but none since. This should explain more impressively than words what an intensive program of immunization can do."

Dr. Wild said he hopes to extend the diphtheria and typhoid fever immunization program this year. He also is anxious to see a voluntary immunization of dogs against rabies to prevent a city-wide quarantine in event of another outbreak of the "mad dog" mallady. Last year a number of persons received pasteur treatment after being bitten by dogs which were victims of or were exposed to rabies.

In the department's war against venereal disease the record of 242 cases under treatment in 1942 compared with 343 in 1938 and 320 in 1939. Discovery of "social disease" cases through examinations required by the state marriage license law and the national selective service act is aiding materially in checking the spread of these maladies, Dr. Wild reported.

CITY WITHOUT POULTRY LAWS

Health Chief Points Out To OPA No Ordinances Regulate Sale, Preparation.

Replying to inquiries from the Office of Price Administration, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, set forth that Mansfield has no ordinance regulating the preparation of poultry for food markets.

"Does Mansfield have an ordinance regulating poultry? If not, what is the customary course?" were the questions put by the OPA.

"Mansfield has no ordinance," Dr. Wild's letter said. "Usually the fowl is drawn, but it can be alive, or it can be offered with its head and feet remaining on the carcass without intrals drawn—in fact, under the lack of regulation it can be presented to the prospective patron in any form."

Dr. Wild has indicated that he will ask council to adopt legislation regulating the marketing of poultry as well as laws governing the operation of slaughter houses.

After losing the first round in an effort to compel the Matthes poultry dressing plant to abate alleged nuisances arising in rear of 227 Poplar street the city board of health last week issued a second mandate directing that specified objectionable features be eradicated not later than March 2. Neighbors have complained to the health department. Dr. Wild said, against rats which infest their homes in forays from their harbor at the poultry plant, object to odors emanating from the plant and are irked by the unsightly appearance of the premises.

"The rats must be eradicated, odors eliminated, proper storage facilities provided if not already existent, and the premises kept clean," the health commissioner declared, if the firm complies with the 30-day stay offered a week ago.

In the first action of the board last October, granting 90 days in which to abate alleged nuisances, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch dismissed a municipal court action as being "too general, discriminatory and not specific as to violations."

HOSPITAL NOTES

WILLARD — Tom Sexton of Groveport underwent an operation for removal of tonsils at Municipal hospital.

JAPS EVACUATE GUADALCANAL, BARE BUNA LOSS

Tokyo Admits 16,700 Dead In First Admission of Major Retreat In War.

tion of the communique was so deviously worded as to be unintelligible.

In New Guinea the Japanese have attempted to establish a stronghold in the Lae-Salamaua area, already under steady American-Australian pressure, and further north, while in the northern Solomons they are known to have put new bases at Munda, Rekata bay and elsewhere.

If the announcement has been made in Tokyo it amounts to an admission of withdrawal from Guadalcanal where, according to last American reports, some Japanese forces still had been holding out.

The Japanese lost Buna some time ago.

The Japanese, however, had never told their people of the loss of their Buna stronghold on the Papuan peninsula.

A navy communique said Sunday that American forces "have established a strong position at Titi, one half mile west of Marovovo on the northwest coast of Guadalcanal island" and that "patrol operations are progressing satisfactorily."

This advance, apparently carried out in a 40 to 50-mile flanking move overland, put the Americans within about five miles of the enemy headquarters on Cape Esperance, where Japanese resistance centered.

The battle in the Solomons and New Guinea were described yesterday as "most pathetic and tragic incidents" by a correspondent for the Japanese news agency Domei, the Office of War Information in Washington reported last night.

A Japanese broadcast quoting the Domei war correspondent, and which may have been intended to prepare the Japanese people for news of the abandonment of Papua and Guadalcanal, was monitored by the OWI.

The correspondent, referring to the action in New Guinea, said that "attacks by the enemy air force were very great. They raided us five or six times daily . . . the first day we landed the enemy carried out 19 raids."

The correspondent commented that in the battle of the Solomon islands and New Guinea the problem of supply was so difficult that Japanese troops went for 20 days without "even a grain of rice."

Tally Jap Solomons Loss at 75,000

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Six months of fighting on and around Guadalcanal have cost the Japanese an estimated 60,000 to 75,000 troops, sailors and airmen, unofficial reports disclosed today.

According to communiques and official and semi-official reports from the battle zone, approximately 9,000 to 10,000 Japanese have been killed in the landfighting on Guadalcanal.

In addition, an estimated 40,000 to 45,000 enemy troops lost their lives when American airmen blasted a Japanese invasion armada off the island in mid-November.

Report Heaviest U. S. Raid On Rangoon

(By Associated Press)

New Delhi reported today the largest number of United States bombers ever sent against Rangoon in a single day blasted the docks and railroad facilities of the important Burma port yesterday only a few hours after RAF bombers had dropped nearly 30 tons of bombs on the city.

Japanese planes attempted to intercept the bombers, but were engaged by American gunners, who shot down one and damaged others. All the United States planes returned to their bases.

The Berlin radio broadcast a Tokyo dispatch saying that nine of the United States planes which attacked Rangoon yesterday were either destroyed or damaged.

On the New Guinea front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported Allied troops driving toward the big enemy base at Salamaua wiped out a Japanese pocket east of the Wau airdrome, 35 miles southwest of Salamaua.

In the skies, United Nations airmen carried out widespread attacks against the enemy.

Dutch and Australian fliers, manning U. S.-made bombers, virtually destroyed the Japanese-occupied town and harbor works of Kobo in the Aroe islands, 500 miles north of Australia, setting fires visible 40 miles.

Other Allied raiders pounded the Japanese airdrome at Buin, on the Northern Solomons, destroyed a 2,000-ton ship offshore and exploded an ammunition dump; and also blasted enemy-held positions at Babo, in Dutch New Guinea; Gasmata, New Britain, and Finschhafen and Lae in Northern New Guinea.

Dispatches from a Pacific base edited an American submarine with the "clean sweep" destruction of a Japanese convoy in the waters off New Guinea, including two warships and six auxiliaries. One of the sunken craft was a full-loaded transport carrying an estimated 1,500 to 6,000 enemy troops.

BIG GUNS DUEL

British, Nazis Exchange Shells Across English Channel.

LONDON — (INS) — British and German artillery batteries on opposite sides of the English channel engaged in a half hour duel of heavy guns today.

The British opened the bombardment, firing about 30 rounds into German positions on the French coast. The Nazi batteries in turn sent shells into the vicinity of Dover.

CLOCK CHANGE PUZZLES SENATE

to the house legislation authorizing the issuance of stickers or placards in lieu of steel automobile license plates for 1943.

The time bill's controversial emergency clause was added by the house last week after the senate failed by a margin of two votes to approve that provision.

Senator Lawrence Kane (R-Hamilton), who was absent on the previous roll call, said he would vote for the clause. Senator James P. Griffith (R-Mahoning), who voted "no" last week, said he, too probably would vote "yes."

Senator John Stephenson (R-Columbiana), who also voted "no," remarked that he had not decided how he would ballot.

Senator Frank E. Wittemore of Akron, Republican majority leader, asserted he would not be surprised if several senators turned against the proposed time change.

Whittemore declared public sentiment was shifting, and added that Gov. John W. Bricker had received "a lot of" communications opposing a reversion from Eastern War time to the hour-slower Eastern standard.

New legislation proposed yesterday would:

Permit old age pensioners to do casual and seasonal work during the war, yet continue to receive pensions;

Remove the working hours limitations for employes over 16 years of age in canneries;

Authorize municipalities to levy property assessments to finance garbage collections;

Repeal the 3 per cent sales tax and substitute a 2 per cent levy on gross sales;

Increase the fishing license fee from 50 cents to $1;

Require labor unions to register with the Department of Industrial Relations and report details such as dues, and provide that they may be sued.

OFFERS THREE FORMS OF RULE

Bill Would Permit Counties To Choose Own Government.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—A bill which would permit counties to select any one of three forms of governments was before the Ohio house of representatives today. The measure, introduced by Rep. Leslie Campbell, Cuyahoga county Republican, would permit the following forms of county government:

1—An elective executive form with commissioners and an elected chief executive who would appoint his department heads.

2—The appointive executive type in which the commissioners would name a chief executive who, in turn, would appoint his department heads

3—The present form under which both commissioners and department heads are elective.

Shoe Stores Running Again As Rationing 'Freeze' Ends

pected to result from the new curtailment will be that facing parents who must keep their fast-growing, active children supplied on a three pairs a year basis. Family coupons may be juggled to accommodate those worst in need, the order stipulated. Further, it was suggested that "shoe exchanges," similar to those in Great Britain, Germany and other European countries, be established to keep all shoes in use as long as they are serviceable.

A few Mansfield stores, where nothing but shoes are sold, closed their doors yesterday using the day to take inventory of their stock preparatory to the resumption of sales today.

Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown told consumers that the rationing eliminates any danger that there will not be enough shoes to go around. Brown, along with other officials, said he hoped that with the resumption of sales today, consumers would not rush to stores to "cash in" their first coupon. The officials advised normal purchases and only if needed.

It was indicated that war ration book three, now in the process of preparation, may be employed in the extension of shoe rationing beyond June 16. Details of this book have not been disclosed but officials said they did not believe it would be practicable to continue use of the sugar-coffee book for shoe purchases.

Brown indicated that it may not be possible to continue the ration at the present rate indefinitely since "no one can guess very far ahead these days."

Stalingrad Ruins Tell Story Of Siege's Horror

hard task. Mines are still exploding.

The Red army men who conducted our party of correspondents into the city ignored these explosions. One fighter, who had known the deafening roar of cannon and bombs and rattle of small arms in the streets of Stalingrad, said, "it's only a little bombing."

German prisoners still crowd the remaining sheltered places in the city, the cellars, the dugouts and the lower floors of shattered buildings. Many are without guards. They suffer from the cold and many of the wounded have been without care, but they are being fed.

In the factory area, where American engineers helped to build a model industrial center, there is nothing to see but heaps of rubbish. The trenches and barricades over which some of the most terrible fighting of the siege surged back and forth are still there with their complement of the dead.

We were taken to see Field Marshal Friedrich von Paulus, the commander of the obliterated Sixth army. He looked thin and stooped and bitter. His eyes twitched nervously as he gave brief answers to the few question asked by a Soviet officer.

Other German generals were quartered in similar houses in the same area.

Lieut. Gen. Maurice von Dreber, commander of the 298 Infantry division, asked why the Germans continued to fight after the Soviet ultimatum, said "Hitler wouldn't give permission to surrender and von Paulus ordered us to hold a certain line after that."

Asked why the Germans then surrendered later, he said:

"The Red army came from the south; the Red army came from the north. We were cut off. We had no food, no munitions. We had lost our airdromes."

The Soviet general commanding Stalingrad said that the plight of the German Sixth army was hopeless from the middle of November and that many Geman officers knew this.

However, he said, the whole strategy campaign had been directed by Hitler and they had to obey his orders.

As in the battle of Moscow, Hitler again overestimated the strength of his army and underestimated the strength of the Russians, he said.

Ohio Relief Costs Go Down Despite WPA Liquidation.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The anticipated upward trend of state relief rolls as a result of WPA liquidation, did not materialize in January, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said today.

"On the basis of preliminary reports received from 97 of the state's 155 relief areas, January's costs will be around $724,000 with a case-load of about 22,500," Sherwood revealed. "These figures represent new lows in Ohio relief."

RUBBER PROGRAM 'MOVES ALONG'

Jeffers Sees No Need to Increase Pleasure Driving Ban.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— William M. Jeffers, federal rubber administrator, said last night the nation's synthetic rubber program is "getting along very nicely now" and indicated that, as far as the rubber supplies are concerned, there will be no need to enlarge the 17-state area in which pleasure driving is banned.

Jeffers, here to inspect a synthetic rubber plant, was asked whether there was any reason why motorists should be cut to a basic ration of less than four gallons a week outside the no-pleasure-driving region.

"Not so far as the rubber situation is concerned," he said.

FIGHT LOOMS

Labor Expected to Oppose More Powers for Patrol.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Prompt and strenuous opposition was expected from the labor lobby today to a bill introduced in the Ohio house of representatives which would extend full police powers to the state highway patrol outside municipalities.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Harold W. Carr (R., Defiance) would give them the right to "detect crime and apprehend criminals." Under present statutes the patrol may make arrests only in cases where the traffic code is violated, although they use this as a basis for making arrests in cases of such felonies as robberies or more serious crimes, since such crimes usually are committed with the use of an auto.

FALL OF KURSK IMPERILS NAZI LINE IN RUSSIA

Red Siege Guns Thundering Destruction Into Second Axis Citadel at Rostov.

Red army troops pushing up through Bataisk, 10 miles south of Rostov, had moved their heavy artillery into range along the south bank of the Don river to bombard that German-held keystone.

Other Soviet columns, last reported 50 miles east of Rostov, were reported cleaning up German nests. A Russian communique said the fleeing Nazis were not only abandoning their wounded but killing them.

Soviet advices declared approximately 250,000 German troops and their satellites were entrenched at Rostov with another 200,000 Axis soldiers cut off in the western Caucasus below the city.

Simultaneously, the German-controlled Vichy radio indicated the lid was about to blow off the North African battle cauldron, declaring that large-scale movements by British motorized forces were in progress along the Libyan-Tunisian frontier.

"Something big is brewing," the broadcast said.

For reasons of military secrecy, British headquarters withheld mention of any offensive, but noted significantly that Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th army had now brought up its artillery and was now engaged in hammering at Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's defenses "in the northern sector."

Meanwhile, Allied bombers of the Middle East command delivered a heavy assault on the important Sicilian city of Messina, port of entry for supplies shipped to the key Mediterranean island from Italy.

In the western air war, Stockholm dispatches reported that the Danish capital at Copenhagen had been bombed three times during the night and explosions were heard on the nearby Swedish shore of the Skagerrak.

Coincidentally, in the wake of the RAF's destructive asault on the Nazi U-boat nest at Lorient, France, German authorities said the damage had been so severe that Lorient and eight surrounding districts would be evacuated by tomorrow.

London had a brief air-raid alarm today, quickly followed by the all clear. German raiders machine-gunned a crowded London-bound passenger train before it escaped into a tunnel.

Churchill Promises Statement On War

LONDON —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill told the house of commons today he would soon make a statement on the war situation, including a reference to the creation of a United Nations war council.

The prime minister stopped the show in commons. He entered unobtrusively and started toward his seat on the treasury bench.

An explosion of cheering and applause burst on all sides and continued until the prime minister was seated. He was smiling broadly.

Responding to further questions, Churchill said he would also discuss the import and shipping situation in his forthcoming statement.

He acknowledged that Britain was "dipping into" her food reserves, but said he was "not unduly anxious about the situation" from a long-term viewpoint.

Allies Hit Axis Ships, Aircraft

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Allied bombers hit two Axis ships in a new attack on the Tunisian port of Sousse and set parked aircraft afire in a raid on an airdrome at Gabes, a communique announced today.

"There is nothing to report from our land forces," the war bulletin said.

It reported that a British submarine operating off the Italian west coast sank four ships in a single day by torpedoes and gunfire.

Medium bombers carried out the attack on Gabes "causing fires among buildings and aircraft on the ground."

The communique said "this raid met strong opposition from enemy fighters, 18 of which were shot down."

In the attack on Sousse, where heavy bombers scored direct hits on two ships, bombs burst on quays and a seaplane base.

In all five Allied planes were lost.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

others by Defense Coordinator G. E. Kalbfleisch while Captain Glenn L. Bierly has ordered all members of Company F. to participate. Mobile gas units have been brought here by the Guard officers. Admission at the 5 p. m. demonstration will be by military or civilian defense identification only.

At 7 p. m. Company F. members will participate in a closed demonstration at the armory and at 7:30 p. m. the officers will conduct instruction work for civilian defense and military personnel at John Simpson junior high school auditorium. Similar sessions will be held at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday and Thursday.

State Guard mobile units are under command of Col. Earl W. Brannon, with Major Fred L. Williams of Ohio State university faculty, and Captain Edward B. Rosser, Chillicothe, as instructors. Captain Bierly, his officers and company members will assist.

All type of war gases will be demonstrated at this afternoon's session, together with proper use of gas masks. Identification, effect and eradication of the gases will be discussed.

First aid classes at Fifth street school Wednesday evening and at City hall Thursday evening have been postponed to next week to permit enrollees to attend the gas schools and war protection lectures and demonstrations.

task which they are about to assume, Beelman said he had been informed.

It is believed that the new registration may include a full accounting of supplies o nhand of the articles on the new ration list. If this is true, the new registration will be far more complicated than that for war ration book one.

While OPA orders have suggested that some system be worked out in cooperation with school officials for distributing information concerning the operation of the point system, school officials have not worked out such a plan to date. They indicated it would be necessary for them to have more information themselves before they could successfully map a program for teaching it to their pupils. This information is especially necessary in determining the age groups to which the information should be given.

Meanwhile civilian defense workers have indicated their willingness to cooperate in instructing the public through the "block system" already set up in both the county and in the city. The newly established "speaker's bureau" will provide speakers at any time on any occasion to discuss the subject when information concerning it is made available to them, according to Mrs. John Pierce, Mansfield civilian defense chairman, and James Eberly, Richland county chairman.

TALKS TONIGHT

Byrnes to Reveal Plans for Checking Wages, Prices.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes is expected tonight to reveal a new administration campaign to hold down prices and to ward off increasing demands for wage increases.

The Office of War Information announced that Byrnes will deliver an important radio address to the people tonight on "The War Against Inflation." The broadcast is scheduled for 10 p. m. EWT., over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

out any further information of sea and air engagements in the Solomons area and said he assumed that "the same preliminary plays are still going on down there," just as they have been since around January 29.

"I suspect it's possible," Knox said, "that this naval and air activity might be a demonstration to cover their withdrawal."

He readily agreed with questioners, however, that this was purely speculative on his part and that the enemy might just as well be planning some new blow as naval spokesman had heretofore indicated was the case.

Passenger Train Schedules

EFFECTIVE FEB. 15, 1943

LET'S get serious about this job of winning the war. Vast quantities of war materials and thousands of troops are now being transported by rail.

To better and more efficiently move the ever-increasing production of essential materials and supplies, North Western-Union Pacific are voluntarily reducing the speed of their regular passenger trains.

We know that all civilians who find it necessary to travel will willingly adjust themselves to slightly longer schedules and, during the duration, to somewhat less travel comfort if conditions so require. Our Nation's welfare must come first at all times.

TRAVEL HINTS FOR CIVILIANS

1. Plan trips and make reservations well in advance. When plans are changed please cancel reservations promptly.
2. Ask about war-time regulations regarding Pullman reservations now in effect on all railroads.
3. Pack all articles needed on the train in one bag. Additional luggage up to 150 pounds can be checked free.
4. Avoid week-end travel peaks by planning mid-week departures.
5. Dining car and kitchen space are limited. Help your fellow travelers by relinquishing your seat in the diner when you have finished your meal.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

A great reporter, a shrewd and brilliant commentator, a fighting writer, he stands at the forefront of modern American journalism. He gets around, he sees things—and tells about them with a courage you cheer and in words you remember. Eye-witness vividness, forthright truth, earthy drollery and flicking satire — you will find all in Westbrook Pegler's daily column "Fair Enough." Read it tomorrow in The News-Journal.

STARTING WEDNESDAY, FEB. 10th

RAYMOND CLAPPER

Candor of statement, sanity of outlook and an often vindicated ability to divine political trends have won for Raymond Clapper the respect of both the politicians and statesmen who people Washington. While his opinions are clear-cut, Clapper measures them carefully against the yardstick of fact and common sense before giving them expression. This, together with an amiability of attitude, makes Clapper's daily column both thoroughly reliable and highly readable. It will be published tomorrow in The News-Journal.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1943.

Deposits in the blood bank pay big dividends in lives saved.

Reminder: Coupon No. 11 is for sugar: No. 25 for coffee; No. 17 for shoes.

As long as taxes are up to the extent of ability to pay, it doesn't seem to make much difference whether they're being paid on last year's income or on this year's.

Inflation Benefits Few, Robs Many

THE SUREST thing about price-raising is that one raise leads to another. The example spreads until eventually the whole price-plane is higher, with people everywhere having to pay more money for everything.

The same thing is true about wage-raising. There are always some wage inequalities here and there that need to be ironed out, just as there are always some price injustices to correct. But this is a matter where, especially in war times, it is necessary to go slowly and carefully, lest the whole balance of prices and wages be upset.

It should be borne in mind constantly, by everybody concerned, that jockeying with prices and wages is dangerous. Many foreign countries have already been sucked into the vortex of inflation, bringing immense losses to millions of people.

And it is so easy to start the inflation process! A little pressure here for higher wages, a little pressure there for higher prices, a feeling that "if they can get it, we should get it, too." Then the upward spiral begins, and people with fixed incomes are helpless, and values are lost in a snowstorm of stage money, and the spree ends in a big bust, with a few people getting rich on everybody else's misfortune.

The only safe way in a time like this is to "peg" prices and wages firmly to solid ground, and not let anybody manipulate the pegs. Great Britain and Canada have done it, and this country can do it.

Rutledge Nomination Confirmed

SENATE confirmation of the nomination of Judge Wiley Blount Rutledge of the United States Supreme Court provides further convincing proof that the hullabaloo raised over the nomination of Edward J. Flynn as minister to Australia had no "anti-administration" significance but was merely the natural reaction to selection of a man of Flynn's type to such a position.

It has been shown time and again that the senate inclination is to "lean over backward" in confirming presidential appointments, but the Flynn nomination proved too unpalatable a dose to swallow.

While some partisan opposition was voiced to confirmation of Judge Rutledge's nomination, his acceptability was at no time seriously questioned and favorable senate action could be foreseen.

The new justice will not be the first of the Rutledge name to sit on the nation's highest court. John Rutledge, a distinguished son of South Carolina, was one of the first members, with the distinction of having been nominated by George Washington.

War Invades Churchill Downs

TRADITION seems to be standing in the way of quick compliance with the government's request to call off the Kentucky Derby this year—on account of the war.

The Derby is a 68-year-old horse racing "institution," as well as Louisville's outstanding annual attraction, and it may be doubted if other than ardent race addicts can appreciate the sentiment which surrounds this "classic" in the minds of its promoters and regular attendants.

First impression of Col. Matt J. Winn, president of Churchill Downs, where the Derby is run, is that it might be made a local, "street car affair," for this year, but as the pacemaker for other racing events, it would seem better to acquiesce willingly in the national war effort, even to the extent of this major sacrifice.

It has been clearly stated by Transportation Director Eastman that no special trains, extra sections, or chartered cars or buses will be available for transportation to sporting events, and it is advised by Rubber Director Jeffers that all race tracks accessible only by automobile be closed for the duration.

American-Reared Japanese Larger

AS SEGREGATED Japanese-Americans are being spread around the country and given a chance to work, it is observed that in general they seem larger and more robust than their parents were. Is it the climate or the food? Possibly both, but the latter has probably had more influence.

If more plentiful and more nourishing food has accomplished this for Japanese immigrants, it raises the interesting question whether the small stature of the Japanese race as a whole is not due largely to a lack of wholesome and substantial food, through many generations.

Certainly it seems that abundant and nutritious food has been a big factor in producing a tall and vigorous race of Americans, although climate and manner of life are important, too.

Closed for Good Reason

A LARGE automotive service concern in Washington, D. C., lately ran a full-page ad saying that it would be closed on a certain day. "Not because someone died, but that someone might live," said the ad.

The whole body of employes was going to the Red Cross blood donor center that afternoon to contribute blood.

Many boys who might have died at sea or on some forlorn battle ground in desert or jungle will live to bless these contributors of blood.

Recent Gallup polls have shown the percentage of "undecided" has increased from 7½ to 9—and it must be an awful feeling, not to know "for sure."

Church "preference" occasionally extends no further than to give the family an idea of which preacher to call to conduct the funeral.

Goebbels tells German soldiers, "It is good to die"—but his is obviously not "the voice of experience."

The increasing birth rate indicates that posterity is not disturbed by the prospect.

THE MEDICINE SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN EFFECTIVE

Quick Surrender By Japs Unlikely

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

SUPPOSE Germany should surrender unconditionally, as demanded by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at their Casablanca conference? Would that mean Japan also? It would include Italy certainly. In fact, it wouldn't be surprising if the Italians were to do their own unconditional surrendering, without waiting for any German initiative. Concerning the Japs there's plenty of speculation.

As proved by World War I, the Germans can be licked into quitting.

Licking a Jap, however, has long been recognized as necessitating killing him. As I've had occasion to remark before, the average Jap is an amiable, kindly individual. His military group absolutely dominates the Tokyo government, though, and these guys are wantonly murderous if they can get away with it, or suicidal if forcibly stalled off from murder. The militarists, too, can be seemingly polite and affable, but it's superficial.

Germany, to be sure, has a military class, likewise. But even the German militarists aren't as crazy as their Jap brethren. They can unconditionally surrender if they have to, or maybe their difficulty is that they can't get their whole population to follow them.

The Japs operate on a 100 per cent wholesale basis, the militarists dictating.

A generation ago they had a war with Russia and the Russians won it, as the whole world was aware, but Tokyo, refusing to admit it, simply went on fighting until the then czar's subject so tired of it that they acquiesced in the treaty of Portsmouth, which recognized the islanders as victors and established 'em on the Asiatic mainland, where they're raising hades at present.

* * *

ANGLO-AMERICAN military, naval, aviational and diplomatic experts incline to the view that they've been more help to Germany than the Germans have been to them.

The Germans do help 'em in one important respect—

They distract the United States from attacking 'em formidably in the Pacific. But what they obviously hope for is a secure enough mainland foothold to enable 'em to dig in before they can be routed, just as they managed in early post-Russo-Jap war days, previously referred to.

If they managed it, it's conceded that they'll be a pest indefiintely, regardless of Germany.

They'll be a pest to the United States. They'll be a grave danger to Australia and other southern Pacific British holdings, and they probably will gobble the Dutch East Indies temporarily before they can be headed off.

China should stand out against 'em, but it will be a harder job if they're waging an independent fight.

Russia's problematic.

Traditionally Russia is anti-Jap.

The circumstance that it hasn't come into the United Nations' activities against Nippon lately doesn't signify much. It doubtless is too considerably occupied nearer home to sprawl out to the eastward.

With Germany surrendering unconditionally (if and when) it remains to be seen what Russia would do in regard to the Nipponese.

* * *

ANYWAY, an unconditional surrender isn't necessarily a surrender of the whole present Axis group—not including Japan. And the Japs may turn out to be a very material left-over consideration to be dealt with as an aftermath to the main thing.

Tokyo, by the way, just now is offering independence to the Philippines, if they'll line up on the Japanese side.

I don't think they'll do it; the Japs are too tricky for 'em, but it would be an embarrassment if they did.

Filipinos are pretty thick in Washington and I believe 'em to be a very loyal crowd. We've managed those islands middling well. And the Japs were rather slow in coming to bat with their offer. It's a redeeming feature of that situation on the east Asiatic coast.

Dave Boone Says:

WELL, the Errol Flynn case is over but the country will be suffering from the sordid publicity for months. I understand some of the women jurors held out for a retrial in technicolor, with screeno.

* * *

Joe Eastman wants the Kentucky Derby cancelled, so if he ever bets I figure maybe the horse he bet in the derby winter book has developed a spavin. Matt Winn will have to call it off, if you ask me. But it will be a hard blow to mint julep lovers.

* * *

Mr. Eastman says circuses and carnivals can take the road with reduced schedules, and if those circus wagons are pulled by horses again it will be okay with me. Something went out of the circus picture when they began hauling it around by motor.

* * *

Spring ain't spring without the notes from the steam calliope, and the big tent is one of the few spots left completely free from anything resembling hate, envy and ugliness.

* * *

When you look into the menagerie cages you realize that the wrong animals are inside. You get an awful sense of injustice seeing Gargantua, Toto, the hyenas, the panthers and the tigers caged up with Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and their kind still loose.

Miracles Happen

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE YOUNGSTERS were sprawled in front of the fire, toasting marshmallows. They'd been dancing, kidding, playing their everlasting records.

For a long time, big red headed Jim had been still. Suddenly he rolled over, said—

"Say, what do you all think of that Rickenbacker gull story?"

"What gull story?" asked lazy Al who is always a mile behind any discussion.

"Aw, wotta dope!" grunted Pete. "Everyone knows that story. How Rickenbacker 'n' those other fellows were starving and they prayed for food and pretty soon an ole gull came along and sat right down on Rickenbacker's head. So they ate it and used the bones for fish hooks."

"So what?" says Al.

"So there are the facts," said big Jim. "Nobody doubts them. You don't doubt a fellow like Rickenbacker. But what I'd like to know is—do you s'pose it was just a coincidence? Do you think miracles like that can happen in 1943?"

Sitting back in the shadow I listened. Miracles happen in 1943? But miracles are always happening. They happen in the simplest acts of our lives.

I plant the meadow to clover. I cover the seeds with earth. I go away and leave it to the mercy of the wind and rain and sun. It seems as dead as any grave, that meadow. Yet some day as I pass it's covered with a gauze of green. The clover has sprung to life. There is a miracle so common that it's lost its sense of the miraculous.

A child I love is hurt — near death. I am frantic. A doctor comes. I have never seen this doctor. But, years ago, our trails began to meet. They began to meet when he first thought of being a doctor. Now, though we are strangers, he holds the knowledge which can and does heal that child. Was that just a coincidence? Was the clover just a coincidence—was that friendship? I do not believe that any of them were coincidences.

I BELIEVE OUR WHOLE LIFE IS A MIRACLE . . . AND AN ACT OF FAITH.

We get what we ask but we first must do our share. The clover sprouted but first I had to plant it. The child was healed, but first I had to seek help. The gull lighted on Eddie Rickenbacker's head, but first Rickenbacker had to be ready.

He had to be ready to believe that help would come if he asked for it. It must have taken many years to build such a faith as that. There must have been many times of doubt, rebellion and indifference. You don't achieve anything worth while easily. Least of all Faith. But he did have faith at last. His Faith went up like a cry from the endless waste of waters. And the answer came.

Yes, I believe in miracles. I see them every day. I believe a man can as surely call down food from heaven as he can raise clover from the earth. But the man must be ready. And sure.

Interpreting the War News

Allies Setting Stage for Invasion, Clearing North Africa Is Prelude

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

INCREASING Allied air and sea activity in the central Mediterranean indicates that the big effort to crush the remaining Axis forces pocketed in the coastal strip of Tunisia will not be long delayed.

Appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as supreme commander in Africa was a tip-off that the plans have been shaped up. The Axis forces in Tunisia are in a strong position for defense and the Allied command has been moving slowly to make sure that its strength is adequate before striking. Besides, the weather in northeastern Tunisia is not yet quite suitable for the start of an offensive.

Meanwhile, activities of the air force and the fleet, including submarines, are designed to prevent the Axis from getting reinforcements and supplies. In this the Allies appear to have been notably successful.

Since it is reported that only about 30 per cent of supplies sent from Italy for Tunisia are reaching their destination, the margin is hardly sufficient to enable the Nazis to withstand an attack in force for any long period.

THE LATEST Allied pounding of Naples, Sicily and Sardinia is additional proof of British-American control of the air. Attacks on essential Italian bases and communication lines are likely to increase rather than diminish and they sginify what is in store for the under side of Europe when the time for invasion comes.

Elimination of the Axis hold in North Africa and consequent domination of the central Mediterranean is a necessary prelude to invasion. A march to the continent naturally would be desirable this year, before Hitler has a chance to recover from his staggering losses in Russia. An early effort to clean up Tunisia therefore is indicated.

Strategically, the invasion would best be timed while Hitler still is in retreat in Russia and is losing heavily there. The Russian offensive has been magnificent but it would be unwise to assume that the Russian army is on a march to Berlin.

The Germans have plenty of territory in which to fall back, and as they do, their communication lines are shortened and strengthened.

When the break-up of winter comes, there is likely to be a slowdown and Hitler will have a chance to make a stand and attempt a comeback.

He is meanwhile scraping the bottom of the barrel in Germany and the satellite countries for additional manpower to make such a stand.

Hitler has to do it this year or he is finished. Caught between a major Allied attack in the west and the kind of Russian army he now is facing in the east, his armies would be in danger of annihilation.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — According to the District of Columbia division of the American Automobile Association, the national capital's share-the-car program has bogged down.

The AAA survey, conducted in both the District and suburbs, shows that cars arrive in shopping and government office areas with an average of approximately two persons per car, so slight an increase over the start of the share-your-car drive that it is hardly worth considering.

Not only that, says the AAA but holders of B and C cards have a record only fractionally better than the limited A-card holders.

* * *

THERE are only two conclusions to be drawn from this: (1) The national capital's carowners are uncooperative; (2) this is one of the country's most unfriendly towns.

I don't know what the AAA conclusions are. They wouldn't state them. But I think both of those deductions are partially true.

Most of the capital's drivers today are government workers. Many are working to the limit of their endurance and the rest think they are. Generally they feel, perhaps, that they should not be asked to take on the additional burden of playing bus driver mornings and evenings; nor should they risk tardiness or late arrivals home by participating in a transportation round-robin.

On the other hand, Washington (except for its taxi drivers) is no longer a "friendly town." If you want proof, ask the personnel directors who are conducting the so-called "exit interviews" (quizzes of persons who insist on leaving their jobs). I have lived in, worked in, or visited in many of the country's big cities, and of all those, only New York can tie wartime Washington in its reluctance, to accept newcomers. And it's the newcomers here who are not driving cars and who are looking for some sort of share-the-cost, if not share-the-car transportation.

THERE is one other important factor. The Washington share-your-car program has been kicked around so much that no agency has really had an opportunity to develop it. Most of the time, it has been in OCD, but even there it has had no abiding place of sufficient permanence to permit enforcement of any rules and regulations.

Officials are trying to do something about that now, but the consensus is that it's pretty hopeless and never can be brought to even the partial success which some war industry areas have approached.

In the meantime, local transportation here is a wartime slowdown. When the public transportation system is upset, as it was by the recent big snow storm, it becomes a definite threat to effective prosecution of the war.

Russell E. Singer, AAA general manager in summing up the local report, said: "Much potential transportation space (in the District) is being wasted. We have a long way to go before we can say that the automobiles in Washington and surrounding territory are being used to maximum capacity."

That's putting it mildly.

War's Mental Shock

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE CAN hardly in this country even dimly realize the mental and emotional beating that the people who live in England and continental Europe and the men of the armed forces are taking in various war activities.

We had a term in the last war for a condition called "shell shock," which applied to soldiers who had been under fire and heavy artillery barrage and who, while they were not wounded in any way, had a mental and emotional upset which was very difficult to treat.

This has been extended into the present conflict: thousands more of such cases are found and the whole civilian population is liable to exposure to these conditions. The English no longer use the term "shell shock," but try to resolve the condition into a more accurate and descriptive name. They do use the term "post-concussional syndrome."

A Case History.

A case in point is that of a private in the English army, 29 years old, who survived several bombings without any symptoms. He was lying in an outpost when a shell dropped within several yards of him and exploded. He remained in a coma for three hours and when he recovered consciousness, he was walking in a wood, crying like a baby and shaking all over.

He had no injury, but continued to suffer from headaches, loss of memory and he trembled on hearing an aircraft and kept thinking of a friend of his who had been killed earlier in the war.

The methods of psychiatry have improved very markedly in the period of time between the end of the last war and the present one and these cases have been treated with considerable success by these new psychiatric methods.

It is well to remember this because a great many cases are started, not by exposure to severe bombings or shellings, but by talking to people who, when they hear that the individual is nervous about shells, tell of a case of a person who had the "shakes" and loss of memory and who "never got over it."

Mostly Curable.

"Never got over it" is a comparatively rare condition, especially under modern methods of psychiatric examination. The modern specialist in the nerves and mind takes these men and analyzes them on the basis of what their previous record was.

Very frequently the causes of the breakdown are found in the past history before the individual entered the army — poor school work, dislike of army routine in the past, family troubles, disagreements and so forth. When all these are carefully analyzed, it is often seen that an individual with post-concussional symptoms was fated and doomed to have them even on very slight provocation.

About half of the combatants who are treated are able to return to duty, although there is a considerable proportion of relapses in these. But when they are put on war work which involves less actual exposure to battle conditions, they usually get along well without any recurrences. The war is thus taking toll of many people in strange and unusual ways.

A Farmer's Diary

Friendly Pine Tree

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FAR ACROSS the crests of many hills, a pine tree showed its shaggy, shadowy top—a landmark where no human dwelling stood. Six miles away, perhaps. I watched it for some time, before I walked to see it.

It was on a steep slope, east along our river valley. Even from a distance, it looked to be no common tree—and when I drew near I felt a deep abiding presence in this aged miracle of nature.

Here it stood, a giant of the lonely wastes. No highway near—I had walked over barren summits, down ragged glens and up the steep slope to reach this spot. The huge base was sound and stood erect, bearing nobly its dark green plumelike top against the white sky.

The western side was scarred by fire—an open scar that nature was trying desperately to heal. When I beat a heavy stone upon this spot, it bounded back as if it touched elastic sinews, I wondered, looking up through the maze of branches, how it could survive other neighboring trees and still have strength and courage to live another century, perhaps. I touched with a finger, a spot where sap exuded and sniffed the piney odor with keen relish.

To the east was the remains of a huge elm trunk—twisted and blasted from the ground by some passing storm. The smaller branches were already dust and from this mould grew waves of soft rich bluegrass.

To the north I noticed the rough outline of what had been a gigantic oak of the native forest. It was food for worms now, and rare forms of fungi. The sandstone rocks that formed the sides of the lonely glen were crumbling and slipping down into the steep narrow trough of land.

Long drab needles lay strewn upon the ground in a soft and fragrant bed. I pulled apart many layers until I reached the soft warm soil beneath. I knew the roots went deep into the heart of the hill. Lesser trees had come and gone; the native shale had rotted and crumbled from the elements; the barren soil around had lost its usefulness—yet here stood the old pine, unmoved, superb, gracious to a degree that humans may not aspire to. When I look at it now, I admire it as a friend.
